

COMPANY M LEAVES THURSDAY MORNING

Will go by Train to Camp Beekman and Rumor is That After Five Days in Camp the Regiment Will be Sent to Texas—Company Pleased at Promise of Active Service.

Company M, 160 strong, leaves for Camp Whitman tomorrow morning taking the train at 9:55 o'clock for Green Haven, between which point and Beekman the mobilization camp stretches more than a half dozen miles over Dutchess county.

According to New York dispatches today, orders call for the company, with the other units of the Tenth Regiment, to remain in camp for five days during which time the equipment now lacking will probably be issued the men by the war department and the entire regiment be placed on a war footing ready to embark for the Mexican border by next Wednesday at the latest.

The company will leave the armory on Broadway at 8 o'clock sharp Thursday morning and will march to Rondout and board the ferry for Rhinecliff.

Captain Frank L. Meagher received orders direct from division headquarters in New York late Tuesday afternoon and later Colonel John F. Klein received duplicate instructions, Company M being, until its arrival in camp, a separate unit of the National Guard of the United States and orders are transmitted accordingly.

All was bustle and stir at the armory this morning the soldiers showing plainly that the prospect for action was most pleasing after the monotony of life in the temporary barracks for the ten days of mobilization.

Generally speaking, the men are in no shape except for their feet. Many are suffering from blisters which are largely due to the fact that their shoes are not adapted to marching. The federal government has not yet issued its service shoes to the guardsmen and this omission is felt keenly by many of them whose feet are unused to the steady pounding of the rifle floor.

In all other respects, however, Captain Cranston, the medical officer, dears his men are in good health and spirits. In military parlance, Captain Meagher has reported the morale of the company as excellent.

No Parade Tonight.
Tuesday night's parade took on an unusual significance in view of the news of moving orders being received. The company marched down Broadway behind Barnum's fire and arm corps to McEntee street and were in the open space beside St. Mary's school a most enjoyable concert was given.

Returning to the armory another usual program was given under the direction of Musician Sass to the enjoyment of a gallery crowded with onlookers.

There will be no parade tonight. The men will be given the evening off to go to their homes or attend to their personal business as they desire for departure.

At 9 o'clock tattoo will be sounded and a roll call will follow so that every member of the company may be accounted for.

The fire alarm signal 14 will be sounded tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock, one hour before the company leaves the armory for the ferry.

Police Regulations for Traffic.
Chief Wood has announced the following police regulations governing traffic on Broadway during the parade:

Automobiles will be allowed to park singly on the north side of Broadway, head toward uptown, thus leaving the other side of the street clear for the soldiers.

All traffic on Broadway with the exception of the trolley cars will be stopped while the parade is in progress.

Any traffic that has to go downtown during the parade will go through Prince street to Hasbrouck avenue.

It is urgently desired by the police that the above regulations be noted and complied with.

It is also requested that no automobiles follow the parade down Broadway.

No Goodbyes at Ferry.
Friends and relatives who desire to bid the soldiers farewell must do so at the armory, for there will be no chance given to say goodbye at the ferry. Under plans as announced the escort will precede the soldiers to the ferry where they will deploy to each side and Company M headed by the band will march directly onto the Transport and the gates will be dropped. Beside the soldiers and the band the only ones allowed on the ferry will be representatives of the press.

This will be a special trip of the ferry leaving Rondout at 8:30 o'clock and only the ones specified above will be allowed to make the trip.

Colonial Rebekah Lodge, No. 48, I. O. O. F., has donated a sum of money to the boys of Company M to use in buying postage stamps and stationery to write home to their friends from the front.

High School Class Day.
This evening at 8 o'clock in the high school auditorium the graduating class of the high school will hold their class day exercises. No invitations have been given out, although all who care to are cordially invited to attend. Considering the interest that is usually shown in this festivity, it is quite probable that the auditorium will be crowded. The class some time ago chose from among its members the following to render the customary program:

President's Address.....Sherman Hasbrouck.
Class Oration.....G. W. Greene
Class Elocutionist.....Ida Lazarus
Class Historian.....Minerva Van Gasbeek.
Class Song.....

Address to Juniors.....Calvin Winne

If the American army has lookouts stations on the tops of big buildings and the high mountain places behind El Paso, the Mexican government is no less represented. While the Americans are surveying Juarez, the Mexicans are surveying the American operations and the various camps about the city.

Thus the news of the march of the American command last week when it was ordered out for a practice march was flashed to Mexico almost as soon as the move started. By the time the troops had assembled and the march was under way the news was already in Juarez and Juarez machine gun squads and civil guard rushed to the international bridge approach.

Every hour's delay in the order to move on Juarez is giving the Mexicans an opportunity to strengthen their forces. From Mexico City today came reports that ten thousand young Mexicans had asked Carranza to give them arms to fight against the hated "Gringos." Refugees from the interior bring stories that 50,000 Mexicans, a great proportion of them well equipped cavalry, are concentrated at Villa Ahumada to resist the American advance.

General Trevino in Chihuahua City, reported to War Minister Obregon that General Pershing was retreating and that the Carranzistas have occupied the former American camps at Bachimba and San Geronimo.

"If Pershing attempts to reenter these camps we will do what we did at Carrizal," Trevino said. "The American force in its new movement went north as our First Chief ordered."

Thus the Mexican official reports prepare the news of troop movement for the favorable consumption of the people. All through Mexico has gone a flamboyant call to arms which concludes: "No fighting will be necessary. Our brave troops will simply march northward, brushing the gringos aside until our glorious tri-color floats from the dome of the capitol at Washington."

"It will be a battle between the Mexican eagle and the American eagle. And we will strip the arrows from the latter's claws and use them to scratch the stars and stripes from the gringo's banners."

PROCLAMATION BY MAYOR CANFIELD

In order that the departure of Company M from Kingston tomorrow morning may not pass without official action, Mayor Canfield has issued a proclamation calling on citizens to give vent to their feelings at the time of the company's departure. The proclamation is as follows:

Kingston is proud of the patriotic voice reflected from the sounding board of its past. This voice comes to us as a precious keepsake of the old Colonial City. This same voice of patriotism and service-for-our-country has been reproduced here.

Our government has issued a call and it has received an immediate and hearty response in our city. Young men of our city and neighboring localities constitute our beloved Company M. They believe in our government. They believe in our flag. They are ready to fight for them. They have taken a binding oath to do so.

On the morning of the morrow, they march away. What will confront them we know not. We must all realize that they are entitled to know that they live in our hearts and will continue to do so. It is not sufficient that our inward thoughts should appreciate their act of courage and sacrifice. Our outward expression and act must disclose it to them in order that they may be spurred on in the path they have patriotically chosen.

Therefore, let the city depopulate its houses and stores and unpeople its factories and buildings at the time of their departure. Let us give vent to our feeling of joy that the nobility of patriotism is preserved in the respective characters of the boys of Company M, although our feeling is tinged with sorrow at the necessity of the call to which they have responded. Let the hum of industry stop for an hour so that as the breeze makes the flag that will lead them flutter, all our citizens, both young and old, will be thrilled with the enthusiasm that will make our hearts beat faster.

Fathers and mothers, take your boys and girls by your side and your babes in your arms, in order that this impressive sight which may not be repeated in a generation may be forever mirrored in their memory. Let them get this dose of patriotism. Our country of the future may depend upon them. The sight of our brave boys marching onward, onward to war, may brighten their heart and illuminate their mind and kindle their imagination with an intense love and admiration for their country that will be exhibited and find expression should our country in the days of their manhood and womanhood require defenders of its existence or of its rights.

Let all carry our flag so that the route of our soldier boys from the armory to the river will be framed with a mass of the colors of our nation. Let all who can, follow them to the creek side. Let all who can go to the riverside at Kingston Point. Let every wave and ripple of the creek and the river be lighted up with the hopeful good-bye that will be in our hearts and on our lips.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Palmer Canfield, Jr., as Mayor of the City of Kingston, N. Y., do hereby officially proclaim the hour of departure of Company M from our city to be "Company M Hour," to be observed as such by our citizens in the manner outlined above and in such other manner as may be fitting and proper.

In WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this twenty-eight day of June, in the year nineteen hundred and sixteen.

PALMER CANFIELD, JR., Mayor.

CENSORS CLOSING DOWN BORDER NEWS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

El Paso, Tex., June 28.—Censorship began to close in on preparations for the planned expedition in Mexico by way of Juarez and detailed accounts of troop movements were shielded with military secrecy. At the same time it became known that the officials of the American army here, the center of the pulsing situation, have already named the censorship staff that will delete the reports of the correspondents on the border.

At Columbus, N. M., there are today five censors where one was sufficient to pass all reports. The tightening of information sources was taken as a certain indication that speedy action was contemplated.

It is known that military activities are always preceded by an application of censorship and today's restrictions promised an early movement of troops. Army officers here are certain that it will be their task to fight their way to Chihuahua City and secure the release of the American troops there and they are eager for the task.

The rigors of censorship will be hard on the "folks back home" who will be anxious to hear news of the experiences of the militiamen. It is upon militia movements that the mailed fist of censorship first began to close.

Information regarding disposition of those bodies was refused, although it is known that all plans for the placing of the various guardmen organizations had been made. It was expected that soon the first regiments from the east would be brought to their posts in the El Paso district and at their points along the border. It is no secret that the Mexican de facto government has in operation a splendid system of espionage. The danger of spies may be more easily comprehended when it is stated that fully half of El Paso's population is made up of Mexicans and in the other border towns the proportion is even more overwhelming. Somewhere along the border, points, army officers have in constant communication with the Mexican side. In fact, government operators have "listened in" on messages sent from some mysterious station in which military locations were revealed and revealed accurately.

If the American army has lookouts stations on the tops of big buildings and the high mountain places behind El Paso, the Mexican government is no less represented. While the Americans are surveying Juarez, the Mexicans are surveying the American operations and the various camps about the city.

Thus the news of the march of the American command last week when it was ordered out for a practice march was flashed to Mexico almost as soon as the move started. By the time the troops had assembled and the march was under way the news was already in Juarez and Juarez machine gun squads and civil guard rushed to the international bridge approach.

Men Have to Wait in Line for Hours in Order to Obtain a Drink—Additional Supply May be Available Tomorrow—Poor Facilities for Bathing.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Camp Whitman, Beekman, N. Y., June 28.—Water still is the crying need of Camp Whitman, despite the assurances of the engineers that an adequate supply for 25,000 men is available. "It may be available," say the soldiers, "but it is not gettable." As evidence of this the men of three regiments of infantry, the Twenty-second, Second and Third, the cavalry and artillery units have to get all their drinking water from one well. As a result the water details from these different regiments have to wait in line for an hour or more before they can get a supply for their camps and it is next to impossible for individual soldiers to fill their canteens unless they wait in line for hours. Several hundred men are waiting in line all day long for water. The well in question is located in the yard of the old Sheldon mansion right opposite division headquarters. The 69th regiment, a mile nearer the station, is not much better off for water. There is one spring from which the regiment gets its drinking water and that is more than a quarter of a mile from the camp; all day long the road from the camp to the spring is being blocked with details of men carrying water in pails and cans and somebody is always thirsty. As a result the soldiers are drinking great quantities of "pop," near beer, and such liquids which only partially satisfy their thirst and are not particularly good for the stomach.

Col. Lucas and his engineers have been bending every effort to furnish the camp with an adequate water supply and they now have one 50,000 gallon tank in place and several miles of pipe laid. The colonel says he will have the water system in operation tomorrow, but that means for only part of the camp, as the pipes have not yet been laid to the camp sites of the regiments that have arrived here in the last day or two. There are numerous small streams in the camp limits in which the men are able to wash their hands and faces but nowhere is there a pool deep enough in which to take a swim and few if any of the men have had a bath since leaving home. There is a small stream running through the 69th camp, which is nowhere more than a foot wide, in which the men wash.

There has been no outward movement of troops this morning but the First Field Hospital and the Third Ambulance Company are under orders to leave for Brownsville, Tex., at 6 o'clock tonight and are all ready to move. The four troops of the First Cavalry under command of Captain Miller are also under orders to leave for Fort Ordlandt Park today. They have all their baggage packed and are ready to move as soon as the railroad company furnishes the necessary transportation. The First Battalion of the Twenty-second engineers, which has been under orders to go to Brownsville for several days, has not left camp and will not get away until tomorrow. Lack of equipment is keeping them here. This equipment was expected yesterday but has not yet arrived.

Wilbur Feds at Mohonk.
The Wilbur Feds will journey to Lake Mohonk on the Fourth of July and try conclusions with the strong Lake Mohonk baseball team. The Feds will present their fastest lineup and endeavor to bring home a victory.

SEVENTH ON WAY TO THE BORDER

By Telegram to The Freeman.

On Board Seventh Regiment, N. G. N. Y., Special, Altoona, Pa., June 28.—The boys of the Seventh have had their first taste of the discomforts of campaigning. Speeding to the sun-baked Texas border they realize only too well today that theirs is no bed of roses.

Packed like cattle in the day coaches of the special train carrying them southwestward, with no accommodations for preparing or cooking food, no facilities for washing and other inconveniences which impress upon them that war is everything that Sherman said it was, they are, nevertheless a happy lot in the expectation of getting into action.

But the discomforts they suffered were more than made up for by the great ovation they received all along the route from New York to Harrisburg. The first real stop the special made in 190 miles was at Pennsylvania's capital. Harrisburg folk must have thought it was a hostile invasion, the way the Seventh boys darted from the train immediately after it rolled into the city.

Long after the word "obedience" in the life of a soldier comes "cleanliness." But when one considers that the bathing facilities on each car consists of two ice water coolers, it can be readily seen that the "dandy Seventh" rolled in as "the great unwashed."

There was a mad rush for the wash room in the station—officers, correspondents and men hopping off the train before it came to a stop. Lieut.-Col. Francis J. McCain, of divisional headquarters, was in the lead, flanked by Captain T. L. Lucas, of the medical corps, and Captain William F. Halstead, of Company B.

Members of the Railroad Women's Division of the National Preparedness Association went through the train distributing tobacco, cigarettes, fruit and candy. During the half hour stop the station swarmed with khaki-clad figures hauling cauldrons of milk and hot coffee and other supplies for the commissary. Another branch of the association met the train at Pittsburgh and gave the soldiers an ovation and "goodies."

BELL GETS 15 DAYS FOR LOITERING
Wilson Bell, 65 years old, was arrested on a charge of loitering around the West Shore station on Tuesday afternoon. The arrest was made by Policeman Shadler. Mr. Bell when arraigned before Recorder Lang this morning pleaded not guilty to the charge, and said he was only waiting for a friend.

Policeman Shadler testified that he had found Bell asleep and had awoke him and told him to move on, but Bell had refused and had become defiant. The officer said that five nights out of seven Bell could be found loitering around the station after the saloons had closed for the night.

Detective Goodsell of the West Shore railroad also testified that he had asked Bell to move a number of times. Bell was also accused of being a panhandler and stopping railroad men, but no complaints had ever been made, owing to the fact that every one felt sorry for him as he was an old railroad man and had lost one of his legs as was forced to use a wooden leg.

Numerous complaints had been made regarding Bell loitering around the station, but this was the first he had been arrested, and it is very likely that if he had moved on when requested and had not become defiant that he would not have been arrested on Tuesday.

Recorder Lang sentenced Bell to fifteen days in the county jail. There were no other cases brought to the attention of the court.

Accident to Orphan Boy.
Little John Garrity, aged eight years, who lives with his sister on Foxhall avenue, this city, met with a painful and serious accident on Tuesday. The little fellow fell from a tree in O'Reilly's woods, and was so badly hurt that he was carried to the office of Dr. F. B. Quinlan on Broadway and from there was hurried to the Benedictine Sanitarium. Here under an anesthetic, it was found on examination made by Drs. Quinlan and W. J. O'Leary, that the lad was suffering from a compound fracture of the arm, the elbow being completely shattered. One leg was also badly lacerated. Everything possible is being done to make little John as comfortable as may be, and the physicians hope to save the arm. The father of the boy, who is one of a large family of children, was killed on the railroad only a short time ago, and the mother has been dead for some little time. The case is indeed a very sad one as the several smaller children are almost entirely dependent upon the older sisters and brothers.

MAN KILLED AT TERRY'S BRICKYARD

James Minice, 60 Years Old, Hit and Instantly Killed by Big Cable While at Work in Clay Bank—Body to be Shipped South.

James Minice, a negro, 60 years old, was instantly killed this morning when hit by a big cable used in operating the iron scoop to dig out the clay bank at Terry's brickyard. Minice had worked on the brickyard for over ten years, and was familiar with the work. He was standing on a platform operating the iron scoop, and stood on the side of the platform that it was said he had been warned not to stand on as he would be hit if the cable should break. This morning a rope connecting with the cable gave way releasing the cable which flew back and struck Minice instantly killing him and hurling his body onto the side of the platform where he was supposed to stand while at work. Dr. Frank Eastman was summoned, but found the man beyond medical aid. He notified Coroner E. A. Kelly, who issued a death certificate. The body was later turned over to Undertaker N. D. J. Murphy and will be shipped to Scottsburg, Halifax county, Virginia, for funeral and interment. Mr. Minice is survived by his widow.

TWO INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT
Mr. and Mrs. Paul Teubner of Tillson, N. Y., were seriously injured on Tuesday evening when the automobile in which they were riding skidded on the road and turned over, hurling them out. The accident occurred on the road leading from New Paltz to Tillson, and about a mile and a half from New Paltz. The injured people were first taken to New Paltz where they were attended by a physician and later removed to the Kingston City Hospital. Mr. Teubner was not as seriously injured as his wife and is expected to recover. This morning Mrs. Teubner was still unconscious, and her condition is considered serious. Just how the accident happened is not known but it is presumed that the automobile skidded and upset.

DR. CHANDLER ASKS LEAVE OF ABSENCE
Not From the Army, but From the Kingston City Hospital as a Member of the Surgical Staff.

The board of managers of the Kingston City Hospital is in receipt of the following letter from Major George Chandler, and will act on the request it makes at its next regular meeting:

June 26th, 1916.
Honorable James A. Betts,
President of the Board of Managers of the Kingston City Hospital.

My Dear Judge:
Pursuant to orders I am now in the military service of the United States. I therefore ask for leave of absence until such time as I may return to my home station.

Dr. Stern and Dr. Norwood have kindly offered to do my work during this tour of duty. My whole interest is centered in the Kingston City Hospital. A favorable action by the board which would insure my position as a member of the surgical staff on my return to Kingston will be deeply appreciated.

With warm personal regards to each member of the board, I am
Your obedient servant,
GEO. CHANDLER.

FIRE BOARD MEETS.
Exempt Certificates Granted and Coal Supply Purchased.

The regular monthly meeting of the board of fire commissioners was held at the central fire station Tuesday evening and considerable routine business was transacted.

Exempt certificates were granted to Everett Scott, a member of Cordts Hose Company, and to Frank Erard, a member of Twainkill Hose Company. John Green was approved as a member of Cordts Hose Company.

Bids for furnishing sixty tons of coal to the different fire stations during the coming winter were opened. The bids of the Kingston Coal Company and Palen & Bouton were each $8.45 per ton for egg coal and $6.70 per ton for stove coal. Teller & Tappen submitted a bid of $6.30 per ton for egg

SWISS LENIENT IN ESPIONAGE CASE

(By International News Service.)
Berne, June 28.—The military committee of the Swiss Federal Council, after an investigation of several months, has decided that State Councillor Savoy of Fribourg, accused of espionage in the interest of the allies, cannot be tried under the military laws of the republic.

The charges against the high official have not been disproved, but the committee holds that he can only be prosecuted by the authorities of the canton of Fribourg for misemeanors committed in office. The case has caused great excitement throughout Switzerland.

Last winter a certain Mr. Jose was cited before the military court at Arlon in Belgium for a minor offence. While the judge left the room for a moment Jose stole an official seal. His theft was discovered at once and his arrest followed. When his home was searched the authorities found overwhelming proof that he was a spy of the Entente powers and had sent much information to the military attaché of the French embassy at Berne through State Councillor Savoy at Fribourg.

His letters and telegrams to the Swiss official seemed to be of an entirely harmless character, but the authorities discovered a key to them which showed that, for instance, the sentence: "Send ten bags of rice," or "Can you furnish 20,000 kilograms of sugar meat?" Ten German regiments left Arlon for the front yesterday, and "German reinforcements of 20,000 men are passing here on their way to the front."

The spy was tried, convicted and sentenced to death, but this penalty was reduced to life imprisonment. Immediately after the German foreign office sent a copy of the minutes to the Swiss federal council, which started an investigation against Savoy. A search of the office of the accused official disclosed copies of several telegrams which apparently came from Jose, but the state councillor claimed that he did not know the sender of the messages, nor their meaning.

The investigation had to be dropped for a time, but it was taken up again when the convicted spy in Belgium made a confession in which he stated positively that his letters and dispatches to State Councillor Savoy were intended for the French military attaché and had been forwarded to Berne from Fribourg.

The spy also confessed that last year he obtained a passport for a trip to Switzerland from the German military authorities by representing himself falsely as the representative of a charitable organization. He went to Fribourg and from there to Havre where he submitted an extensive report on his activities as a spy to the Belgian war department. On his way back to Belgium he stopped at Fribourg and obtained a certificate stating that he had not left the Swiss city during the two weeks for which his German passport was made out. The certificate was signed: "Savoy, Director of the Departments of Justice and Police of the Canton of Fribourg."

When the accused state councillor was questioned in regard to the certificate he confessed that he knowingly made a false statement in his official capacity, but vehemently denied that he received any money for his act or was influenced by any foreign government.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

1616.—A Graceful Popular Model.

Costume for Misses and Small Women.

This desirable model has new and becoming style features. The fronts are cut low over a vest in surplus style, and are finished with a revers collar. The waist is mounted on a lining. The sleeve in wrist length may be finished with a shaped cuff. In short length a smart flare cuff forms a suitable trimming. The skirt is especially noticeable because of its pocket effects at the side seams and the becoming fullness of its lines. The pattern is nice for figured silk, crepe, embroidered voile or batiste, also for nun's veiling, serge, lawn and dimity. The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 16, 18 and 20 years. It requires 5 1/2 yards of 44 inch material for an 18 year size. The skirt measures about 3 yards at its lower edge.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Catalogue Notice.

Send 10 cents in silver or stamps for our up-to-date 1916 large Spring and Summer Catalogue, containing over 400 designs of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Patterns, as well as the latest Embroidery Designs, also a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, giving valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Who is the happiest of men? He who values the merits of others, and in their pleasure takes joy, even as though it were his own.—Goethe.

DELICIOUS CAKE FILLINGS.

An ordinary cupcake or a plain, cheap, simple cake recipe may be so varied by frostings and fillings that it is always different.

Pineapple Filling.—Take a tablespoonful of gelatin dissolved in a little pineapple juice, add a half cupful of grated pineapple and enough lemon to make it pleasantly tart; add very stiff boiled frosting to make sufficient quantity of icing, and filling.

Orange Filling.—This is especially delicious with any white cake, but is a great favorite as a filling for chocolate cake. Take the rind of an orange as well as the juice, put into a cup and fill the cup with water, cook two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, a pinch of salt, the yolks of two eggs and a third of a cupful of sugar with it; add a teaspoonful of butter and a little lemon juice. Cool before using on cake.

Fruit Filling.—Take a cupful of seeded raisins, a half pound of blanched almonds, a half pound of figs, the same amount of dates and a fourth of a pound of citron. Put these twice through the meat chopper and add enough boiling frosting to make a soft paste.

Marshmallow Filling.—Boil two cupfuls of sugar with a cupful of water till it hairs, then add to the whites of three eggs, beaten stiff. Have ready a half box of marshmallows, cut in bits; beat them in while the mixture is hot enough to melt them. Take out half the frosting and thin with pineapple juice or orange juice to cover the outside of the cake; use the remainder for a filling and set in a cool place to harden. Garnish the top with alternate pieces of marshmallow and candied cherries.

Plain Chocolate Icing and Filling.—Melt two ounces of chocolate over hot water, add two cupfuls of brown sugar, a half cupful of milk and a teaspoonful of butter; cook until it makes a soft ball in cold water. Cool, add a little cinnamon and stir until thick enough to spread. Put it on while the cake is warm.

Maple filling is delicious. using maple sugar for the sirup and beating it as any boiled frosting.

CARRANZA MAY CHANGE HIS MIND

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, June 28.—A hint that Carranza might at the eleventh hour reverse his decision not to release the American troops held prisoners in Chihuahua City came today from administration sources. It was voiced by Postmaster General Burleson but he refused to intimate where he received his information. Simultaneously the Latin-American diplomats here in Washington renewed their pressure on Carranza to have him meet the wishes of the United States and thus prevent war. As indicating that the pressure at least seemed to be having some effect was the declaration by the Mexican embassy officials that "there might be delay" in sending the reply to Sunday's ultimatum to this city. Yesterday the spokesman notified Dr. Calderon, the spokesman of the Latin-American diplomats, that the American demand for the release of the captured prisoners had been emphatically refused.

STILL WAITING FOR CARRANZA NOTE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, June 28.—The administration still waited today for the Carranza answer to its ultimatum demanding the immediate release of the American troops held in Chihuahua City and a direct statement of intentions of the de facto government toward the United States. Although the Latin-American colony here has received word through its representatives in Mexico City that the Carranza government has decided unfavorably in both instances the state department still insisted that it was without word. Administration leaders said that the president will wait 24 hours additional for a reply before passing the facts on to congress for its consideration.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Casey-Peck.
Chichester, June 28.—William Casey of this place and Elizabeth Peck of Shandaken were united in marriage by the Rev. Father Joseph Schully at the Phoenixia Roman Catholic Church last Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

Fowler-Thompson.
The wedding of Miss Sarah Thompson and Willard H. Fowler of near Chichester took place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. E. E. Mount on Park street, Ellenville Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, the Rev. W. H. Moser of the M. E. church performing the ceremony. This was followed by a wedding reception. The bride's mother, Mrs. Thompson of Middletown, Conn., was recent and will remain with her daughters for a visit. For the summer, Mr. and Mrs. Fowler are to occupy a furnished apartment in the residence of Addison Stratton on Hooper street.

Hubbard-White.
With the marriage Tuesday of Miss Martha Isadore White, second daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Henry White of Vassar College, and Irwin Stuart Hubbard, nephew of William H. Hart of "Heartsease," Chichester Road, formerly of Federal Point, Florida, the first wedding in the Thompson and Pratt Memorial Chapel at Vassar was solemnized. The ceremony was performed Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock by Rev. Alexander Griswold Cummings, rector of Christ Church, assisted by Mr. Clifford Case, pastor of the Dutch Reformed Church. The famous Vassar Chapel was beautifully decorated in a color scheme of yellow and white, field daisies giving the keynote.

Carter-Snyder.
Private Robert P. Carter of No. 1 Lawrence street, a member of company M, and Miss Anna O. Snyder of No. 290 Clinton avenue, were united in marriage on Tuesday evening at St. Peter's Church by the Rev. Dr. P. Neumann in the presence of relatives and friends. Private Peter William Norton of company M was best man, and Miss Ella T. Carter, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. Mr. and Mrs. Carter had not expected to be married before fall, but a calling out of company M who were ordered to Camp Whitman on Sunday caused them to change their plans. They secured their wedding license from City Clerk Manning at the city hall late yesterday afternoon. Both bride and groom have a host of friends who wish them a happy and prosperous married life. Following the ceremony a wedding supper was held.

Schubert Octet Concert.
The concert to be given on the evening of Friday, June 30th, at 8 P. M. C. A., by the Schubert Octet, of Concordia, Theological Seminary, St. Louis, Mo., under the leadership of the two young pianists, the Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church on Livingston street, will be one of the memorable social events of the year. The men forming the club are all university graduates and will enter ministry in the fall. The octet is now on its way east. It will give engagements in Buffalo on June 15th, in Boston on June 23rd, and in New York City on June 28th, and in Kingston on June 30th. The members of the octet are: tenors, A. Katt and M. Mueller; and tenors, E. Schmidt and R. Schindler; first basses, C. Kutschinski and R. Heyne; second basses, P. Engelbert and H. Claus.

Before leaving St. Louis the octet gave a farewell concert at Odeon Hall, the largest auditorium in St. Louis, and received the most flattering reception. Their renditions were received with enthusiastic acclaim. Says one critic: "Meister-saenger" for true!—By their singing they have proved the little bestowed by us.—They have been the ablest interpreters of Musica's golden words to ever appear behind the local footlights.

Referring to the 14th annual concert of the Concordia Seminary Student's Chorus, at which the Schubert Octet carried the quartet and octet parts, the St. Louis Post says: "Schubert Octet sang in the artistic manner that characterized previous appearances.—They excelled former productions, freshness and power distinguishing the rendition of the songs."

The program will appear in a future issue of The Freeman.

Enjoyable Alumni Reunion.

The banquet and dance given by the Ulster-Kingston Alumni to the class of 1916 of the Kingston High School in the gymnasium of the school last evening, was a very enjoyable affair. Covers were laid for some hundred and forty guests, and Mrs. Daley served a fine collation. The gymnasium was handsomely decorated with maroon and white ribbon and clusters and festoons of mountain laurel, the work of the senior committee. Two large American flags completed the decorations. At the close of the banquet, Miss Eloise Myers, president of the K. A. Alumni, and chairman of the joint committee, in a few gracious and fitting words complimented the committee on its efficient work, and introduced Superintendent Michael as the toast master of the evening. The first speaker introduced by the toast master, was Judge A. T. Clearwater, a member of the Kingston Alumni Association, who emphatically regretted that there was a not much larger attendance of the alumni of both institutions present; urged the formation of a permanent organization, and compared the educational systems of the first days of the academy with those of today. Ex-President William C. DeWitt was the second speaker, whose remarks were both facetious and earnest. In the absence of Mayor Canfield, Superintendent Michael paid a fine tribute to the work of the new Kingston high school, and then introduced Eugene Lichtenberg, president of the Ulster Academy Alumni, who though called upon at the eleventh hour to speak, was very happy in what he said, expressing his gratification that the associations of the two academies had thus united in their reunion and closing with an appropriate poem by Moore. With the singing of Auld Lang Syne, the more formal part of the evening came to a close, and dancing was enjoyed. Muller's Orchestra furnished music that was as thoroughly enjoyed as was the program played during the banquet.

Fine Berries in Market.

Some of the nest strawberries ever brought into the local markets have been on sale in Kingston this week. On Tuesday there was a surplus of the fruit due to the sunning of the previous day and the price broke to as low as five cents. The best berries today are bringing 10 and 11 cents.

Maj. Snyder's Grandson Enlists.

Strawberry Festival Postponed.

The strawberry festival that was to have been held at the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church on Friday evening has been postponed. Announcement will be made later of the postponed date.

Rebuked.

The persevering landscape painter knew that he had an observer looking over his shoulder at the easel. He knew from the rustle of skirts that the observer was a woman; yet he worked steadily on. Presently the observer spoke.

"A charming landscape," she said. "Ah, you flatter me," said the artist modestly. "Compared with the original landscape it is very poor stuff."

"I meant the original," said the observer.—New York Times.

A Puzzled Student.

Little Ethel had just returned from Sunday school and was looking very puzzled.

"Mamma," she said, "did they have very large beds in Bible days?" "I don't know, dear," said her mother. "Why do you ask?"

"Because," said the little girl, "our teacher said today that Abraham slept with his four fathers."

Gave Warning.

Wife—Well, dear, I shall have to do the cooking now. Cook left without warning this afternoon. Husband—Not exactly without warning. She told me this morning I had better bring home some dyspepsia tablets tonight, but I didn't quite understand what she meant.—London Tit-Bits.

Money in China and Egypt.
Coins were made in China so long ago, it is said, as the year 2250 B. C., but they could not have been other than portions of metal cast into portable shape, such as were all the earliest money. In Egypt, the cradle of civilization and commerce, strange to say, there was no imperial coinage. Copper, silver and gold were used, but they were manufactured into lumps, shaped sometimes like brick, and in the case of gold and silver were molded in rings, like the ancient Irish money of ten centuries ago. It appears almost inconceivable that a people who created the pyramids and erected such magnificent temples should have been entirely ignorant of coins. Yet it is certain from the statements of Herodotus that such was the case. The first coinage of money in Egypt was not struck to assist the Egyptians themselves in their commercial dealings, but, rather, because the foreign merchants with whom they traded, the Greeks and the Phoenicians, demanded some medium which would have the guarantee of its value apparent on it and which would circulate for that value.

Name of the "Dogger Bank."
The Dogger Bank has long been carefully protected, because in the shallow waters that surround it there is the finest fishing that is to be found anywhere near the English coast. The wide stretch that shelves down to a depth of only 120 feet is the largest sand bank in the North sea, and in bygone times it was claimed by both Holland and Denmark. The name has nothing to do with the geological formation of which the sand bank is composed. "Dogger" is a sandy, iron impregnated stone that is well known to the geologist. But this bank took its

SWISS LENIENT IN ESPIONAGE CASE

(By International News Service.)
Berne, June 28.—The military committee of the Swiss Federal Council, after an investigation of several months, has decided that State Councillor Savoy of Fribourg, accused of espionage in the interest of the allies, cannot be tried under the military laws of the republic.

The charges against the high official have not been disproved, but the committee holds that he can only be prosecuted by the authorities of the canton of Fribourg for misdemeanors committed in office. The case has caused great excitement throughout Switzerland.

Last winter a certain Mr. Jose was cited before the military court at Arlon in Belgium for a minor offense. While the judge left the room for a moment Jose stole an official seal. His theft was discovered at once and his arrest followed. When his home was searched the authorities found overwhelming proof that he was a spy of the Entente powers and had sent much information to the military attaché of the French embassy at Berne through State Councillor Savoy of Fribourg.

His letters and telegrams to the Swiss official seemed to be of an entirely harmless character, but the authorities discovered a key to them which showed that, for instance, the sentences: "Send ten bags of rice," or "Can you furnish 20,000 kilograms of sugar meant: "Ten German regiments left Arlon for the front yesterday," and "German reinforcements of 20,000 men are passing here on their way to the front."

The spy was tried, convicted and sentenced to death, but this penalty was reduced to life imprisonment. Immediately after the German foreign office sent a copy of the minutes to the Swiss federal council, which started an investigation against Savoy. A search of the office of the accused official disclosed copies of several telegrams which apparently came from Jose, but the state councillor claimed that he did not know the sender of the messages, nor their meaning.

The investigation had to be dropped for a time, but it was taken up again when the convicted spy in Belgium made a confession in which he stated positively that his letters and dispatches to State Councillor Savoy were intended for the French military attaché and had been forwarded by Berne from Fribourg.

The spy also confessed that last year he obtained a passport for a trip to Switzerland from the German military authorities by representing himself falsely as the representative of a charitable organization. He went to Fribourg and from there to Harve where he submitted an extensive report on his activities as a spy to the Belgian war department. On his way back to Belgium he stopped at Fribourg and obtained a certificate stating that he had not left the Swiss city during the two weeks for which his German passport was made out. The certificate was signed: "Savoy, Director of the Departments of Justice and Police of the Canton of Fribourg."

When the accused state councillor was questioned in regard to the certificate he confessed that he knowingly made a false statement in his official capacity, but vehemently denied that he received any money for his act or was influenced by any foreign government.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

1616.—A Graceful Popular Model.—Costume for Misses and Small Women.

This desirable model has new and becoming style features. The fronts are cut low over a vest in surplice style, and are finished with a revers collar. The waist is mounted on a lining. The sleeve in wrist length may be finished with a shaped cuff. In short length a smart flare cuff forms a suitable trimming. The skirt is especially noticeable because of its pocket effects at the side seams and the becoming fullness of its lines. The pattern is nice for figured silk, crepe, embroidered voile or batiste, also for nun's veiling, serge, lawn and dimity. The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 16, 18 and 20 years. It requires 5 1/2 yards of 44 inch material for an 18 year size. The skirt measures about 3 yards at its lower edge.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Who is the happiest of men? He who values the merits of others, and in their pleasure takes joy, even as though it were his own.—Goethe.

DELICIOUS CAKE FILLINGS.

An ordinary cupcake or a plain, cheap, simple cake recipe may be so varied by frostings and fillings that it is always different.

Pineapple Filling.—Take a tablespoonful of gelatin dissolved in a little pineapple juice, add a half cupful of grated pineapple and enough lemon to make it pleasantly tart; add very stiff boiled frosting to make sufficient quantity of icing, and filling.

Orange Filling.—This is especially delicious with any white cake, but is a great favorite as a filling for chocolate cake. Take the rind of an orange as well as the juice, put into a cup and fill the cup with water, cook two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, a pinch of salt, the yolks of two eggs and a third of a cupful of sugar with it; add a teaspoonful of butter and a little lemon juice. Cool before using on cake.

Fruit Filling.—Take a cupful of seeded raisins, a half pound of blanched almonds, a half pound of figs, the same amount of dates and a fourth of a pound of citron. Put these twice through the meat chopper and add enough boiling frosting to make a soft paste.

Marshmallow Filling.—Boil two cupfuls of sugar with a cupful of water till it hairs, then add to the whites of three eggs, beaten stiff. Have ready a half box of marshmallows, cut in bits; beat them in while the mixture is hot enough to melt them. Take out half the frosting and thin with pineapple juice or orange juice to cover the outside of the cake; use the remainder for a filling and set in a cool place to harden. Garnish the top with alternate pieces of marshmallow and candied cherries.

Plain Chocolate Icing and Filling.—Melt two ounces of chocolate over hot water and add two cupfuls of brown sugar, a half cupful of milk and a teaspoonful of butter; cook until it makes a soft ball in cold water. Cool, add a little cinnamon and stir until thick enough to spread. Put it on while the cake is warm.

Maple filling is delicious, using maple sugar for the sirup and beating it as any boiled frosting.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 28, 1916.

The Freeman cordially endorses every sentiment expressed in Mayor Canfield's proclamation, printed on the first page of this paper today, as does every good citizen of Kingston. The men of Company M deserve all the manifestations of approval and encouragement that can be given them and we hope to see a demonstration that will surpass that made in 1898 when the old Fourteenth Separate Company left town. But let us remember that crowds and cheers are poor substitutes for food and clothing, and show our appreciation in a practical way also, by contributing liberally to the fund for the aid of the families left behind by the soldiers.

Even Democratic worry lest the United States Supreme Court be dragged into politics is quieting down and, contributing to this end, the appointment of Attorney-General Gregory to fill the vacancy due to Mr. Justice Hughes's resignation will have its uses. There are two things remarkable about this appointment, the first being that Mr. Gregory is the second member of President Wilson's cabinet to be placed on the bench of the highest court in the land and second the fact that the new justice's former duties had to do with the prosecution of important cases dealing with alleged violations of the Sherman law so when the court passes upon these he will be unable to sit. The latter handicap also applies to his predecessor in the Department of Justice, now Justice McReynolds. In addition to the two points mentioned, Mr. Gregory has two equally notable qualifications for the place. First, he is a Democrat and, second, a Southerner. These two qualities are inevitable claims to preferment under the present administration. To Colonel House, the White House's first in war and first in peace missions, is due much of the recognition won by Justice Gregory, according to Washington report. With that backing and the fortunate possession of the two essential qualities named, the new justice's selection was a foregone conclusion.

Money makes the mare go is an old adage not without its application to Mexico, where Carranza, in common with his predecessors, has found it profitable to sell beef on the hoof to buyers this side of the border and also to realize no small profit from the practical monopoly which Yucatan enjoys on sisal fiber, the main component of binder twine which American farmers use in such quantities. There is a business side to these revolutions quite as important as are war loans to the wholesale destruction plants now being operated by the European powers. Mexico exported to us during 1915 a total of $77,612,691, according to our government statistics, and her imports from the United States in the same year were $34,164,447 which is about half the total realized under normal conditions. Sisal, crude oil, cattle, hides, metals and rubber are her products Uncle Sam uses and today we are Mexico's best customer, taking nearly 80 per cent of her exports. With this market cut off and an effective blockade of her seaports by the American navy, it is hard to see how even guerrilla warfare can hold out against the sore financial straits in which Mexico would find herself without its revenues from exports and imports. The paralysis resulting would more than any other thing bring a speedy termination to a war if war must come.

As the Maud Muller of the modern political hayfield, Colonel Roosevelt has improved on the poetic original by inditing a note to the judge as he went riding by instead of resting dreamily on his rake handle in idle speculation of what might come to pass. Of course, it must be admitted that the Colonel's crop of 1916 is a failure, not at all palatable to the discriminating and highly moral appetite of the Moose and only taken in a few wisps at a time by the hungry Elephant. But as a straw shows which way the wind blows, so does this hayfield planted in 1912 give indications of a profitable harvest in a second sowing by the combined energies of Progressives and Republicans.

The Colonel's letter was characteristic of the man and that is sufficient to be said about it, except that in the main it philosophically accepts the decrees of fate which are just about the same as forecasted in these columns for some months previous to the Chicago fizzle engineered by Progressive leaders. The fact remains that Candidate Hughes has always been a man for all of the people and he is not at all disposed to be petty over giving the Colonel space on the bandwagon as shown by his telegram of appreciation and invitation to dinner which have caused such brays of anguish from Democratic editorial writers. The people of the United States, apart from professional politicians, can await the ringing of the dinner bell with equanimity.

He Proved It.

During the recitation of a college class in natural philosophy, the professor observed a tall, lanky youth in a rear seat, his head drooping, his body relaxed, his eyes half closed, and his legs encumbering an adjacent aisle.

"Mr. Frazer," said the professor. "The freshman opened his eyes slowly but did not change his pose."

"Mr. Frazer, what is work?"

"Everything is work," was the drawing reply.

"Sir," exclaimed the professor, "do you mean to tell me that is a reasonable answer to my question?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then I take it that you would like me and the class to believe that this desk is work?"

"Yes, sir," replied the youth wearily. "It is woodwork."—The Christian Herald.

A Kitchener Story.

Here is a story about Kitchener, told by a Brooklyn man, who, when a boy, lived in Ireland, near where Kitchener was born:

"There was an engineer once who lived near by the place and the great soldier wanted a bridge to be built by a certain day in the neighborhood. The engineer put a large force of men on the work and, by great exertion, got the bridge completed. He came to tell Kitchener about it, and as he had to hurry to get to Kitchener's office by the appointed time he had not gotten himself up very neatly. He hastened in and told of the bridge being all done, and expected to be greatly praised for the work. Kitchener was a man of few words and so he merely said 'Yes.' Then he added, with a twinkle in his eye, 'But you should have shaved first, before coming here this morning.' It was all a bit of fun, and yet Kitchener meant it, for he liked neatness."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Art by the Yard.

Long had the poor young artist waited for his first patron. And now a prosperous looking man stood before him.

"Pictures?" said the painter, trying to hide his eagerness. "Certainly, I have some to—er—dispose of. What subjects would you like to see; allegorical, landscape, or what?"

The stranger looked blankly at him.

"Don't care much about subjects," he replied. "What I want is something about three feet long and 18 inches wide to hide a crack in the wall."—Chicago Herald.

True, but Harsh.

"Why did you strike this man?" asked the Judge, sternly. "He called me a liar, your honor," replied the accused. "Is that true?" asked the judge, turning to the man with the mussed-up face. "Sure it's true," said the accused. "I called him a liar because he is one, and I can prove it." "What have you to say to that?" asked the Judge of the defendant. "It's got nothing to do with the case, your honor," was the unexpected reply. "Even if I am a liar I guess I've got a right to be sensitive about it, ain't I?"—Philadelphia Star.

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO.

June 28, 1896.—Arthur Brannigan badly scalded at his home on Greenkill avenue.

The "New Idea" Cabinet

"Your own idea of what a kitchen cabinet ought to be"

(By La Raconteuse).

The sport smock is indeed a sensible investment, because it can readily be worn over any skirt. These garments are shown now in numerous attractive combinations, that is to say, contrasting collar and cuffs with the stitching to match. The illustration shows a white linen smock with rose linen collar and cuffs. It is both youthful and cool looking.

Bear Mountain Service.

A new feature of the Day Line service this year is the regular stopping of the morning south-bound steamer at Bear Mountain, arriving there at 9:50 a. m. and on the return this steamer leaves Bear Mountain at 4:30 p. m. Everyone along the Hudson should know that this great mountain tract of 28,000 acres is becoming one of the world's most famous parks. Its operation is entirely free from any political taint or "catch penny methods." It is as free as the air, orderly and charming. Great numbers of rowboats are on the beautiful Highland Lake; there are open playgrounds of all sorts, swings, etc., for all and all are free. Splendid rides and mountain trails entice one in all directions. A great Casino is the central feature of the park and affords shelter, in case of rain, and food is sold there at as reasonable prices as can be made.

GLASCO.

Glasco, June 28.—A recruiting outfit from Catskill arrived in town Saturday evening with colors flying and bugle sounding, and succeeded in arousing the latent patriotism of several of our young men who were willing to go to the Mexican border. The volunteers were Earl Weeks, Edward Teitler and Leopold Naccaratto.

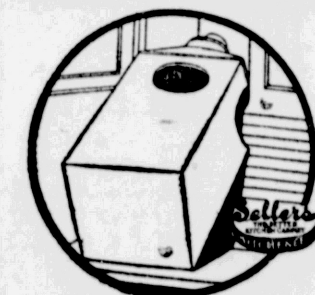

An auto party consisting of Frank H. Fatum, John Vorhauer, Jr., George Delaney, Ward Mickel, Frank Schrieder, Salvatore Brokaw and "Puddin'" Mirabella visited Camp Whitman at Beekman on Sunday.

HOW MILK SHOULD BE KEPT CLEAN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., June 28.—The three "C's" for the proper care of milk in the home, according to the dairy specialists of the U. S. department of agriculture are:

Keep milk clean, cold, covered.
Milk is a highly perishable food and the length of time it will remain sweet and safe, especially for children, depends, the specialists say, almost entirely upon the constant care it receives from cow to consumer. Milk passes through three agencies—the producer, the dealer and the consumer. If the first two have done their part, clean, safe milk will be delivered, thoroughly chilled, to the consumer. The consumer's responsibility begins the moment the milk is delivered at his doorstep.

Because milk poured from vessel to vessel on the street is very liable to contamination from dust, manure particles and germs, milk is best delivered in capped bottles. If bottled milk cannot be obtained, the housewife should try to have someone in the family receive the milk in a clean, scalded utensil, cover it instantly, and put it without delay into the refrigerator, or the coldest available place. Under no circumstance should an uncovered pitcher, bowl or pan be left out on the porch to receive bulk milk. The vessel, both before and after the milk is poured into it, is accessible to flies and collects particles of dust and dirt.

Even in the case of bottled milk, however, the consumer must see that the bottle is not left out in the heat for a moment longer than is necessary. Milk should be delivered and kept at a temperature of 50 degrees Fahrenheit or lower—the colder the better. At such temperatures bacteria develop very slowly and milk undergoes little change until consumed. A slight rise in temperature above this point, however, permits bacteria to multiply rapidly and brings about rapid deterioration of the milk, which may render it unfit for ordinary use and make it highly dangerous for babies and little children. For this reason bottled milk or other milk should not be allowed to remain in a warm place, as on a sunny porch or in a hot kitchen, for a moment longer than is necessary.

Delivery of Milk in Hot Weather.

In hot weather the best plan is to have the milkman put the milk directly into the refrigerator, because at that time of year milk can not be kept properly without ice. If a refrigerator is not available, provide a small box containing ice, and if ice is unavailable, provide some tight container with insulated walls that keep the heat from getting rapidly to the cold milk. A homemade fireless cooker is admirable for this purpose, especially if partially filled with ice.
In the absence of any of these devices, arrange with the milkman not to leave the milk in the sunlight, but to put it in the coolest, shadiest place around the house.

Handling Milk in the Home.

In handling milk around the home, do not pour it from one vessel to another until it is to be consumed. Do not let the bottle of milk remain out of the refrigerator a moment longer than is necessary. Keep the milk covered, using paper caps or inverted tumbler on bottles, or storing it in covered utensils. Any household utensil that is to be used for keeping milk should first be cleaned and thoroughly scalded.

Before opening a bottle of milk, wash and wipe the neck and outside of the cap with water and a clean cloth. The little depression on the top of the cap may collect dust or water and any milk that leaks out may attract flies. Lift out the cap with a pointed instrument, so that the outside of the cap, which may be contaminated, will not be pushed down into the milk. Each time the milk is to be poured from the bottle it is a wise precaution to wash the neck as described.

Milk in a Refrigerator.

The refrigerator where milk is stored should be cleaned regularly, special care being given to keeping the drip pipe free and clean. The ice rack also should be cleaned and any place where food is kept or milk stored should be scalded occasionally with sal-soda solution. The refrigerator, even though cold, may quickly be contaminated by a few drops of spilled milk, or by small particles of food. No matter how clean the refrigerator, milk should never be kept in an open vessel. As milk absorbs odors easily such food as fish, cabbage or onions should not be kept in proximity to it.

Clean Empty Bottles.

As soon as a milk bottle is emptied, rinse it thoroughly with cold water. Do not return dirty bottles and do not use milk bottles except to hold milk. Returning dirty bottles to the milkman may mean that a few days later either you or your neighbors will get contaminated milk. Milk bottles should never be taken into a sick room. In case of infectious or contagious disease, all bottles should be boiled thoroughly and should not be returned to the dealer without the express permission of the attending physician.
Such diseases easily can be made epidemic through disregard of this precaution.

Where There are Children.

Care of milk, important for all, is a vital necessity in a home where there are children. It is absolutely essential to the safety of babies. No intelligent mother will leave to an ordinary servant the task of caring for or preparing milk for her baby.
Mothers of small children should follow directions for the proper handling of milk and for cleaning and sterilizing nursing bottles. Pamphlets on infant feeding may be obtained from the municipal milk stations or health officers. Milk for babies can not be kept too cold, and too much care can not be given to keeping it clean and covered.
Further information on this subject may be had by writing to the U.

CARRANZA MAY CHANGE HIS MIND

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, June 28.—A hint that Carranza might at the eleventh hour reverse his decision not to release the American troops held prisoners in Chihuahua City came today from administration sources. It was voiced by Postmaster General Burleson but he refused to intimate where he received his information. Simultaneously the Latin-American diplomats here in Washington renewed their pressure on Carranza to have him meet the wishes of the United States and thus prevent war. As indicating that the pressure at least seemed to be having some effect was the declaration by the Mexican embassy officials that "there might be delay" in sending the reply to Sunday's ultimatum to this city. Yesterday the embassy notified Dr. Calderon, the spokesman of the Latin-American diplomats, that the American demand for the release of the captured prisoners had been emphatically refused.

STILL WAITING FOR CARRANZA NOTE

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, June 28.—The administration still waited today for the Carranza answer to its ultimatum demanding the immediate release of the American troops held in Chihuahua City and a direct statement of intentions of the de facto government toward the United States. Although the Latin-American colony here has received word through its representatives in Mexico City that the Carranza government has decided unfavorably in both instances the state department still insisted that it was without word. Administration leaders said that the president will wait 24 hours additional for a reply before passing the facts on to congress for its consideration.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Casey-Peck.

Chichester, June 28.—William Casey of this place and Elizabeth Peck of Shandaken were united in marriage by the Rev. Father Joseph Schully at the Phoenixia Roman Catholic Church last Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

Fowler-Thompson.

The wedding of Miss Sarah Thompson and Willard H. Fowler of near Poughkeepsie took place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. E. E. Count on Park street, Ellenville Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, the Rev. W. H. Moser of the M. E. Church performing the ceremony. This was followed by a wedding luncheon. The bride's mother, Mrs. Thompson of Middletown, Conn., was present and will remain with her daughters for a visit. For the summer, Mr. and Mrs. Fowler are to occupy a furnished apartment in the residence of Addison Stratton on Mooser street.

Hubbard-White.

With the marriage Tuesday of Miss Martha Isadore White, second daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Henry Seely White of Vassar College, and Edwin Stuart Hubbard, nephew of William H. Hart of "Heartsease," Manchester Road, formerly of Federal Point, Florida, the first wedding in the Thompson and Pratt Memorial Chapel at Vassar was solemnized. The ceremony was performed Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock by Dr. Alexander Griswold Cummins, rector of Christ Church, assisted by Dr. Clifford Case, pastor of the Dutch Reformed Church. The famous Vassar Chapel was beautifully decorated in a color scheme of yellow and white, field daisies giving the keynote.

Carter-Snyder.

Private Robert P. Carter of No. 29 Lawrence street, a member of Company M, and Miss Anna O. Snyder of No. 280 Clinton avenue, were united in marriage on Tuesday evening at St. Peter's Church by the Rev. John P. Neumann in the presence of relatives and friends. Private Peter William Norton of Company M was best man and Miss Ella T. Carter, a sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. Mr. and Mrs. Carter had not expected to be married before fall, but the calling out of Company M who are ordered to Camp Whitman on Thursday caused them to change their plans. They secured their wedding license from City Clerk Cummins at the city hall late Tuesday afternoon. Both bride and groom have a host of friends who wish them a happy and prosperous married life. Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served.

Schubert Octet Concert.

The concert to be given on the evening of Friday, June 30th, at the Y. M. C. A., by the Schubert Octet, of Concordia Theological Seminary St. Louis, Mo., under the direction of the two young people's societies of the Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church on Livingston street, will be one of the memorable musical events of the year. The young men forming the club are all seminary graduates and will enter the ministry in the fall.

The octet is now on its way east for the engagements in Buffalo on June 15th, in Boston on June 23rd, and in New York city on June 29th, and in Kingston on June 30th. The members of the octet are: First tenors, A. Katt and M. Mueller; second tenors, E. Schmidt and R. Weinhold; first basses, C. Kutschinski and R. Heyne; second basses, P. Engelbert and H. Claus. Before leaving St. Louis the octet gave a farewell concert at Odeon Hall, the largest auditorium in St. Louis, and received the most flattering reception. Their renditions were received with enthusiastic acclaim. Says one critic: "Meister-saenger" for true!—By their singing they have proved the little bestowed by us.—They have been the ablest interpreters of Musica's golden words to ever appear behind the local footlights."

Referring to the 14th annual concert of the Concordia Seminary Student's Chorus, at which the Schubert Octet carried the quartet and octet parts, the St. Louis Post says: "Schubert Octet sang in the artistic manner that characterized previous appearances. They excelled in former productions, freshness and power distinguishing the rendition of the songs."

The program will appear in a future issue of The Freeman.

Enjoyable Alumni Reunion.

The banquet and dance given by the Ulster-Kingston Alumni to the class of 1916 of the Kingston High School, in the gymnasium of the school last evening, was a very enjoyable affair. Covers were laid for some hundred and forty guests, and Mrs. Daley served a fine collation. The gymnasium was handsomely decorated with maroon and white ribbon and clusters and festoons of mountain laurel, the work of the senior committee. Two large American flags completed the decorations. At the close of the banquet, Miss Eloise Myers, president of the K. A. Alumni, and chairman of the joint committee, in a few gracious and fitting words complimented the committee on its efficient work, and introduced Superintendent Michael as the toast master of the evening. The first speaker introduced by the toast master, was Judge A. T. Clearwater, a member of the Kingston Alumni Association, who emphatically regretted that there was a not much larger attendance of the alumni of both institutions present; urged the formation of a permanent organization, and compared the educational systems of the first days of the academy with those of today. Ex-President William C. DeWitt was the second speaker, whose remarks were both facetious and earnest. In the absence of Mayor Canfield, Superintendent Michael paid a tribute to the work of the new Kingston high school, and then introduced Eugene Lichtenburg, president of the Ulster Academy Alumni, who though called upon at the eleventh hour to speak, was very happy in what he said, expressing his gratification that the associations of the two academies had thus united in their reunion and closing with an appropriate poem by Moore. With the singing of Auld Lang Syne, the more formal part of the evening came to a close, and dancing was enjoyed. Muller's Orchestra furnished music that was as thoroughly enjoyed as was the program played during the banquet.

Fine Berries in Market.

Some of the best strawberries ever brought into the local markets have been on sale in Kingston this week. On Tuesday there was a surplus of the fruit due to the sunshine of the previous day and the price broke to as low as five cents. The best berries today are bringing 10 and 11 cents.

Maj. Snyder's Grandson Enlists.

Raymond Van Buren, son of Mrs. Cora Van Buren and grandson of the late Major Martin Snyder, has enlisted in Company B, Eighth Massachusetts Regiment, for duty in Mexico. Mr. Van Buren is a former resident of Kingston, but the past year has been employed at Everett, Mass.

Strawberry Festival Postponed.

The strawberry festival that was to have been held at the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church on Friday evening has been postponed. Announcement will be made later of the postponed date.

Rebuked.

The persevering landscape painter knew that he had an observer looking over his shoulder at the easel. He knew from the rustle of skirts that the observer was a woman; yet he worked steadily on. Presently the observer spoke.

"A charming landscape," she said. "Ah, you flatter me," said the artist modestly. "Compared with the original landscape it is very poor stuff."

"I meant the original," said the observer.—New York Times.

A Puzzled Student.

Little Ethel had just returned from Sunday school and was looking very puzzled.

"Mamma," she said, "did they have very large beds in Bible days?"

"I don't know, dear," said her mother. "Why do you ask?"

"Because," said the little girl, "our teacher said today that Abraham slept with his four fathers."

Gave Warning.

Wife—Well, dear, I shall have to do the cooking now. Cook left without warning this afternoon. Husband—No exactly without warning. She told me this morning I had better bring home some dyspepsia tablets tonight, but I didn't quite understand what she meant.—London Tit-Bits.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Money in China and Egypt.

Coins were made in China so long ago, it is said, as the year 2259 B. C., but they could not have been other than portions of metal cast into portable shape, such as were all the earliest monies. In Egypt, the cradle of civilization and commerce, strange to say, there was no imperial coinage. Copper, silver and gold were used, but they were manufactured into lumps, shaped sometimes like brick, and in the case of gold and silver were molded in rings, like the ancient Irish money of ten centuries ago. It appears almost inconceivable that a people who created the pyramids and erected such magnificent temples should have been entirely ignorant of coins. Yet it is certain from the statements of Herodotus that such was the case. The first coinage of money in Egypt was not struck to assist the Egyptians themselves in their commercial dealings, but, rather, because the foreign merchants with whom they traded, the Greeks and the Phoenicians, demanded some medium which would have the guarantee of its value apparent on it, and which would circulate for that value.

Name of the "Dogger Bank."

The Dogger Bank has long been carefully protected, be cause in the shallow waters that surround it there is the finest fishing that is to be found anywhere near the English coast. The wide stretch that shelves down to a depth of only 120 feet is the largest sand bank in the North sea, and in bygone times it was claimed by both Holland and Denmark. The name has nothing to do with the geological formation of which the sand bank is composed. "Dogger" is a sandy, iron impregnated stone that is well known to the geologist. But this bank took its name from the two master fishing boats that have been used by Holland for several centuries in the herring and cod fishing in the North sea. The dogger is similar to the ketch, but adapted for fishing, especially in the shallow waters surrounding the Dogger Bank. —St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

HIGH FALLS.

High Falls, June 28.—Mrs. W. L. Krom and daughter, Isabel, have gone to Pennsylvania, where they will spend some time at the home of Mr. Krom's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Christiansa and children of Astoria, L. I., are to spend the Fourth at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Niesh.

Mr. and Mrs. Festus Yeaple, and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Schoonmaker motored to Kingston on Saturday evening.

Mrs. W. L. Krom was in town on Saturday.

There was a stereopticon lecture given in the Reformed Church on Sunday evening. The topic was "Child Life in the World."

The subject of the Wednesday evening prayer meeting is "What is the Purpose of our Life on Earth?" Reference found in Eph. 2:10.

Miss Helen Krom, who graduated from Oneonta this June, is home for her summer vacation.

Miss Amanda Krom and niece, Mrs. Daniel Schoonmaker of Accord, are visiting friends at Claverack.

Mrs. H. Haggerty is a guest at the Whalen home.

Mrs. David Sherman was in town on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Niesh are employed at Spring Farm.

The Van Laers of Albany have come into their summer home.

Mrs. Joseph Yeaple, who has been spending some time at the home of her son, Claude Yeaple of Walden, returned home on Saturday. Her granddaughter, Hilda Yeaple, is to spend some time at her home here.

Miss Nettie Duym was in town on Monday.

Children's Day was observed in the Reformed Church on Sunday morning. Although the weather was stormy, there were quite a number present. They were well repaid for coming, as the program was excellent. Great credit should be given the children and the committee who had charge of the drilling. The flower committee should receive praise for the decorating.

HURLEY.

Hurley, June 28.—The return of some of our village folk indicates summer, the weather notwithstanding. The latest arrivals are the Olson family of Marletown Road, Miss Ethel Elmendorf at the Elmendorf homestead and the Lockwood young men, Lloyd and Fred. These latter took a unique and pleasing manner to return after their year's work in Cornell College where Lloyd has just graduated. They came by canoe from Cayuga Lake and the central waterways of the state into the Hudson river, finally landing at Rondout. There were a few difficult places to manage but the trip was made safely and delightfully.

The Rev. Joseph Millett of Tillson was to have preached in the village church on Sunday but his car broke down on the way hither, he was unable to complete the journey. The congregation which has assembled had service with Euer Lockwood leading.

A strawberry festival is planned for Wednesday evening, June 28. The proceeds will go toward a thorough renovation of the church.

Dr. Sahler was in the village one day last week with a photographer, taking moving pictures of scenes along the street.

The mass of mud in the main village street has been removed, making less source of dust for the coming months.

Examinations and resulting marks have interested the village children and young folks lately, both those attending the village school and those in the Kingston high school. The highest mark yet reached is that attained by Ralph Miller of the high school, 100 per cent in algebra. We have one member of the graduating class in the high school, Miss Mabel Hillier.

Our village school closed on Wednesday last and will resume on Tuesday, September 5. Both teachers have been engaged for the coming year.

NEW HURLEY.

New Hurley, June 28.—Miss Martha Gladwin of Gardinertown spent a few days last week with friends in this place.

Lee Hammer has purchased a new Buick automobile of Charles Ronk.

Mrs. A. J. Nicoll has returned to her home in Delhi, Delaware county, after a three weeks' visit with Mr. and Mrs. Hallock Sutton.

Master Borden Monell, who has been quite ill, is able to be out again.

John McCord and son and daughter were guests at Eli Mackey's last Sunday.

The ladies of the congregation will meet at the church on Wednesday, June 28, at 10 o'clock, rain or shine, for the purpose of taking up the carpenter and removing the things to the parsonage to get ready for the redecorating of the interior of the church, which will begin on that day. Each one is expected to bring her lunch.

There will be no preaching services in the New Hurley Church until further notice is given.

A number from this place attended the band concert at Walden last Friday evening.

H. W. Sutton and grandson of Clintondale were in this place on Saturday.

Miss Clarice and Marie Van Wyck are spending their summer vacation with their parents.

The Missionary Society will meet with Mrs. George Van Wyck on Thursday afternoon, July 6, at 2 o'clock. Leader will be Mrs. Van Wyck. Bible word, Harvest. Miss Davis of New York will attend this meeting.

No Servant Problem Here.

The servant problem has not bothered Mrs. H. L. Garland of Opeposas, La., according to the American Magazine. She has had one servant in her family for 33 years, a negro woman who commenced her duties as servant eight years before the Civil war began. The name of this paragon, who shows that the old-time darky devotion still exists, is Mrs. Sophie Simms.

COMMON AMERICAN BIRDS

INTERESTING INFORMATION ABOUT THEM SUPPLIED BY THE BUREAU OF BIOLOGICAL SURVEY OF THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

COOPER'S HAWK

(Accipiter cooperi)

Length, about fifteen inches. Medium sized, with long tail and short wings, and without the white patch on rump which is characteristic of the marsh hawk.

Range: Breeds throughout most of the United States and southern Canada; winters from the United States to Costa Rica.

Habits and economic status: The Cooper's hawk, or "blue darter," as it is familiarly known throughout the South, is pre-eminently a poultry and bird-eating species, and its destructiveness in this direction is surpassed only by that of its larger congener, the goshawk, which occasionally in autumn and winter enters the United States from the North in great numbers. The almost universal prejudice against birds of prey is largely due to the activities of these two birds, assisted by a third, the sharp-shinned hawk, which in habits and appearance might well pass for a small Cooper's hawk. These birds usually approach under cover and drop upon unsuspecting victims, making great inroads upon poultry yards and game coverts favorably situated for this style of hunting. Out of 123 stomachs examined, 38 contained the remains of mammals. Twenty-eight species of wild birds were identified in the above-mentioned material. This destructive hawk, together with its two near relatives, should be destroyed by every possible means.

STONE RIDGE.

Stone Ridge, June 28.—Miss Laura Onslow, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Milton Elmendorf, left for the White Mountains on Sunday.

Don't forget the Fourth of July celebration to be held in this village. At 9:30 a. m. there will be a concert by the Weehawken Fife and Drum Corps; 10 o'clock, baseball game; 12 noon, dinner; 2 p. m., big parade; 3:30 o'clock, speech by Dr. R. H. Boyd of Jersey City; 4:15, games and field sports; 6 o'clock, supper; 7:45 p. m., Boy Scout play, "A Strenuous Afternoon." Admission to the play will be twenty-five cents. The price will include ice cream.

Irwin Cornish has purchased an Overland car.

All strangers are asked to decorate their cars or wagons and meet at the Grange Hall at 1 p. m. on the Fourth of July, ready to participate in the parade to be held in this village.

The services in the Reformed Church on Sunday evening, July 2, will be held in the interest of the Anti-Saloon League and a representative of that society will address the congregation.

ULSTER PARK.

Ulster Park, June 28.—Mrs. Elmer Ellsworth, son, Harry, and Miss Mabel Terpening spent a few days at Poughkeepsie in company with Mr. and Mrs. L. Troutman of Jersey City. They motored to Poughkeepsie.

Mrs. Emile Knipps and son of College Point, L. I., have returned home, after spending some time with Mrs. J. Knipps.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Van Sickle and daughter of Hurley and Miss Hazel Rose of New York city spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. J. Sahler.

Jason Sahler and Ernest Eckert spent Sunday in Poughkeepsie.

Miss Ethel Barley spent Sunday at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Ellsworth spent Friday with Elmer Ellsworth on the Grand View Farm.

Miss Lizzie Ellison is spending some time in Kingston.

Miss Mary Ellsworth of Port Ewen spent the week end with her sister, Mrs. S. A. Cole.

Miss Mildred and Julia Kennoch spent Friday with Miss Elizabeth Gerhardt at Kingston.

MODENA.

Modena, July 28.—In accordance with the request of the national department of labor that Sunday, July 2, be set apart as citizenship Sunday by all the churches, the pastor of the M. E. Church will preach on "The Essentials of Citizenship" at the morning service. At the evening service at 7:45 o'clock, the Rev. J. C. Eason, of the Anti-Saloon League, will speak.

The Fourth of July will be a big day in Modena. Beginning at 1 o'clock there will be a community celebration under the auspices of the M. E. Church. The program will include Judge Jenkins and other speakers. Music by the DuBois orchestra of Poughkeepsie. Various sports, such as old maid's race, three legged race, greased pole, etc., and a special motion picture program in the evening. Refreshments of all kinds will be served on the church grounds.

MRS. GEORGE J. O'KEEFE

ERICA NOW HAS "LADY NICOTINE" WHO WILL SUPPLY OUR ARMY BOYS WITH SMOKE.

New York, June 28.—America has a Lady Nicotine. She is Mrs. George J. O'Keefe, wife of Special Sessions Justice O'Keefe, and one of the most ardent charity workers in Brooklyn. Mrs. O'Keefe will form an organization of women who will provide American soldiers on the Mexican front with tobacco. While it is true the government furnishes tobacco, Mrs. O'Keefe and her co-workers believe that the luxury of a "smoke" should be a real luxury. As the government provides but one brand, America's Lady Nicotine solicits all brands of cigars, cigarettes and smoking tobacco, so that troops will have a chance of getting their favorite brands. Mrs. O'Keefe got her idea of providing tobacco for the American soldiers from Mrs. George Washington Loop, who is known as "My Nicotine" by the soldiers in the muddy trenches of the allies. Mrs. Loop sent them 12,000,000 cigarettes, 260,000 pounds of smoking tobacco and 50,000 pipes. She is the daughter of the former Minister in Paraguay to France.

Lots Easier. Bobby rushed out to meet his father the other night as he was returning work and said breathlessly: "Dad, papa, I won't have to study so hard at school any more." "Why not?" Bobby had been doing far from well in his studies, and his father was pleased to hear of the new interest, hoping for better things. "Now that, my son?" said he. "I got put back a class."

Queen's Carriage. By the beginning of the seventeenth century the use of carriages and coaches had become so prevalent in England that in 1601 the attention of parliament was drawn to the subject, and a bill "to restrain the excessive use of coaches" was introduced, which, however, was rejected on its second reading. In the early part of the century it was estimated that there were 6,000 in London and its vicinity.

BOY SCOUTS WILL ESCORT SOLDIERS

Preparedness is the Motto and For Ten Years the Scouts Have Been Practicing it—Will Prove This Tomorrow.

Troops 1, 2, 3 and 4, of the Boy Scouts and their officers, are ordered to meet at the Y. M. C. A. at 7:30 a. m. Thursday, rain or shine, to honor Company M, Tenth Regiment, N. G., N. Y. Your employers will grant this hour. All boys cannot be uniformed on account of the factories working on U. S. uniforms.

President Wilson surrounded by the officials of the Boy Scout movement, and Eagle Scouts in Washington on June 15, signed a bill which grants federal incorporation to the Boy Scouts of America. After writing his signature which makes this bill a law, the president presented the pen with which he had written his name to Colin H. Livingstone, of Washington, D. C., president of the National Council of the organization. It is seldom that a president makes or permits ceremony to the signing of bills, and the exception in this case was due to his great personal interest in the Boy Scout movement in which he followed Colonel Roosevelt and Mr. Taft as honorary president.

The officials of the movement recognize this law of federal incorporation to be perhaps the most important step in the development of the scout movement since the original charter was obtained from the government on February 10, 1910. It will give protection to the Boy Scouts of America from the claims of organizations, having in their program none of the features which have distinguished the Boy Scout movement from all other forms of work with boys "Boy Scouts" without authorization by persons or concerns who have endeavored to commercialize the interest of boys created by the Boy Scout movement.

Another very important result of the new law will be the adequate protection not only of the words "Boy Scouts" but of the various emblems of the movement. Under the National Council a program of activities and tests has been developed and examinations standardized, so that the scout uniform itself and the many badges which are awarded for proficiency, all stand for the very same things in all parts of continental and insular United States. Some imitations of the scout insignia have appeared and it was realized that unless the federal government provided adequate protection the time might come when imitations put forward by other organizations would destroy the meaning of the scout uniform and emblems and so rob the boys of the country of the tremendous incentive which these insignia have been to boys to strive for the knowledge and the dexterity for which these emblems now stand. President Wilson's signing of the bill on June 15 put an end to this fear and preserves for the Boy Scouts of America one of its greatest assets.

The Boy Scout movement establishes modern educational facilities in activities in the great and healthful out of doors where may be the better developed physical strength and endurance, self reliance and the powers of initiative and resourcefulness, all for the purpose of establishing through the boys of today the very highest type of American citizenship.

The movement has grown rapidly in the past few years, until it is now organized in practically every community of 4,000 inhabitants and over, and in many smaller communities of the United States.

Their services on the occasion of the Ohio floods, the Gettysburg reunion in the inaugural ceremonies of President Wilson, and at the recent memorable reunion of the Grand Army of the Republic in Washington attracted nation-wide attention and received general commendation, particularly from the American National Red Cross and the officials of the federal and state governments. The importance and magnitude of its work is such as to entitle it to recognition by federal incorporation.

The Scout scheme is based upon the methods involved in educating the boy. It is a scheme of placing the boy on honor. In addition to requiring him to live up to a standard or code of laws, which insures development of character along proper lines, it requires him to study in order to pass certain tests of qualification. The passing of these various tests is recognized by the award of appropriate badges or medals and insignia.

If any boy can secure these badges without meeting the required tests, the badges will soon be meaningless, and one of the leading features of the scout movement will be lost. Likewise, with the uniform which designates the scout. At the present time this is protected by the use of insignia—a seal woven or stamped into cloth. All of these various

The Delight of Children

The self-developed, inner-flavour of NEW POST TOASTIES bear a unique attraction for the kiddies—they even like them dry from the package for their lunches. A box of Toasties provides "eats" that will delight the children.

NEW POST TOASTIES are usually served with cream and sugar, in which form the flavor is more pronounced and the flakes more delicious. These NEW TOASTIES do not "chaff" or crumble in the package and they don't mush down in cream—both common defects of old-fashioned "corn" flakes.

Then, too, notice the tiny bubble on the flakes, produced by the quick, intense heat of a new patented process of making which imparts delightful crispness and a substantial body to the flakes.

NEW POST TOASTIES are a vast improvement over any old-style "corn flakes."

badges and insignia are at present protected by the patent laws, but under the patent laws such protection is available for a limited period only. The passing of congress of this bill will, it is believed, provide the organization with proper protection for its distinctive insignia, the integrity of which is essential to the maintenance of the movement, and protect it from those who are seeking to profit by the good repute and high standing and popularity of the Scout movement by imitating it in name alone.

The identical language of this bill was incorporated in the bill with amendments thereto, known as H. R. 19,907, which was reported from the committee on the judiciary on February 3, 1915, with a recommendation that it, as so amended, do pass.

The local council desires to communicate with employers desiring bright honest boys, and with the boys wanting steady work. Ward B. Everett, our treasurer, has consented to run this bureau. Call his office either personally or by telephone 555, and his secretary will give you the information needed. If the citizens of Kingston will each give us a helping hand and a bit of toleration, (we were all boys once) in ten years we will give Kingston timber that you will all be proud of.

NEWBURGH COMPANY AT CAMP WHITMAN

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Camp Whitman, Beekman, N. Y., June 28.—Company E, of the First Regiment of Infantry from Newburgh, reached here at 10 o'clock last night, having left Newburgh at 2 p. m. The company, which is 150 strong, or up to full war strength, is commanded by Captain Raphael Egan, a prominent lawyer and a member of the city commission of Newburgh. The first lieutenant is W. B. Penoyer, head bookkeeper of the Highland National Bank, and the second lieutenant is A. E. Brundage, member of the tobacco firm of J. W. Brundage & Co. Lieutenant Brundage is the most popular officer in the outfit, and he has taken pains to supply every member of the company with all the cigars, cigarettes and tobacco they can smoke.

The company had nothing but sandwiches to eat from the time they left Newburgh until this morning, when their supplies arrived. The cook, Clarence Martin, who was formerly chef of the Palatine Hotel in Newburgh, then prepared a good breakfast for the men. The company has 23 sets of brothers in its membership and there are three brothers Keefe. Sixty-eight of the men of the company are employees of the DuPont Fabrickoid Company of Newburgh. They are getting full pay from the company while they are away. The trumpeter of the company, Bert Smith, has three honorable discharges from the regular army, where he served three enlistments as a bugler and also wears the army medal for Philippine service.

The men are fully equipped and all are aching to get at the Mexicans. The First Regiment numbers over 1,700 men and is commanded by Col. C. H. Hitchcock.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 28, 1916

The Freeman cordially endorses every sentiment expressed in Mayor Canfield's proclamation, printed on the first page of this paper today, as does every good citizen of Kingston. The men of Company M deserve all the manifestations of approval and encouragement that can be given them and we hope to see a demonstration that will surpass that made in 1898 when the old Fourteenth Separate Company left town. But let us remember that crowds and cheers are poor substitutes for food and clothing, and show our appreciation in a practical way also, by contributing liberally to the fund for the aid of the families left behind by the soldiers.

Even Democratic worry lest the United States Supreme Court be dragged into politics is quieting down and, contributing to this end, the appointment of Attorney-General Gregory to fill the vacancy due to Mr. Justice Hughes's resignation will have its uses. There are two things remarkable about this appointment, the first being that Mr. Gregory is the second member of President Wilson's cabinet to be placed on the bench of the highest court in the land and second the fact that the new justice's former duties had to do with the prosecution of important cases dealing with alleged violations of the Sherman law so when the court passes upon these he will be unable to sit. The latter handicap also applies to his predecessor in the Department of Justice, now Justice McReynolds. In addition to the two points mentioned, Mr. Gregory has two equally notable qualifications for the place. First, he is a Democrat and, second, a Southerner. These two qualities are inevitable claims to preferment under the present administration. To Colonel House, the White House's first in war and first in peace missions, is due much of the recognition won by Justice Gregory, according to Washington report. With that backing and the fortunate possession of the two essential qualities named, the new justice's selection was a foregone conclusion.

Money makes the mare go is an old adage not without its application to Mexico where Carranza, in common with his predecessors, has found it profitable to sell beef on the hoof to buyers this side of the border and also to realize no small profit from the practical monopoly which Yucatan enjoys on sisal fibre, the main component of binder twine which American farmers use in such quantities. There is a business side to these revolutions quite as important as are war loans to the wholesale destruction plants now being operated by the European powers. Mexico exported to us during 1915 a total of $77,612,691 according to our government statistics and her imports from the United States in the same year were $31,164,447 which is about half the total realized under normal conditions. Sisal, crude oil, cattle, hides, metals and rubber are her products. Uncle Sam uses and today we are Mexico's best customer, taking nearly 60 per cent of her exports. With this market cut off and an effective blockade of her seaports by the American navy, it is hard to see how even guerrilla warfare can hold out against the sore financial straits in which Mexico would find herself without its revenues from exports and imports. The paralysis resulting would more than any other thing bring a speedy termination to a war if war must come.

As the Maud Muller of the modern political harfield, Colonel Roosevelt by lacking a note to the judge as he went riding by instead of resting dreamily on his rake handle in idle speculation of what might come to pass. Of course, it must be admitted that the Colonel's crop of 1916 is a failure, not at all payable to the discriminating and a little moral appetite of the Moose and only taken in a few wisps at a time by the hungry Elephant. But a straw shows which way the wind blows, so does this hayfield planted in 1912 give indications of a profitable harvest in a second sowing by the combined energies of Progressives and Republicans.

The Colonel's letter was characteristic of the man and that is sufficient to be said about it, except that in the main it philosophically accepts the decrees of fate which are just about the same as forecasted in these columns for some months previous to the Chicago fizzle engineered by Progressive leaders. The fact remains that Candidate Hughes has always been a man for all of the people and he is not at all disposed to be petty over giving the Colonel space on the bandwagon as shown by his telegram of appreciation and invitation to dinner which have caused such brays of anguish from Democratic editorial writers. The people of the United States, apart from professional politicians can await the ringing of the dinner bell with equanimity.

"Do you believe that there is a Higher Power?" "Yes, my dear sir, I married her."—Life.

Social tact is making your company feel thoroughly at home, even though you thoroughly wish they were—Puck.

"Her father declares that the day she marries that college football player she will lose a million dollars." "And only get a quarter back."—Boston Transcript.

"There is something very picturesque about the Scotch costume." "Yes. And it's economical, too. A man doesn't have to bother about keeping his trousers pressed."—Washington Star.

"Say, look here, you're the fellow who took my overcoat from the club the other day?" "All a mistake, of course. But I left a much better one." "I know you did. It was too small."—Cleveland Plain-Dealer.

He Proved It.

During the recitation of a college class in rural philosophy, the professor observed a tall, lanky youth in a rear seat, his head drooping, his body relaxed, his eyes half closed, and his legs encumbering an adjacent aisle.

"Mr. Frazer," said the professor. The freshman opened his eyes slowly but did not change his pose. "Mr. Frazer, what is work?" "Everything is work," was the drawing reply.

"Sir," exclaimed the professor, "do you mean to tell me that is a reasonable answer to my question?" "Yes, sir."

"Then I take it that you would like me and the class to believe that this desk is work?" "Yes, sir," replied the youth wearily. "It is woodwork."—The Christian Herald.

A Kitchener Story.

Here is a story about Kitchener, told by a Brooklyn man, who, when a boy, lived in Ireland, near where Kitchener was born.

"There was an engineer once who lived, near by the place and the great soldier, wanted a bridge to be built by a certain day in the neighborhood. The engineer put a large force of men on the work and, by great exertion, got the bridge completed. He came to tell Kitchener about it, and as he had to hurry to get to Kitchener's office by the appointed time he had not gotten himself up very neatly. He hastened in and told of the bridge being all done, and expected to be greatly praised for the work. Kitchener was a man of few words and so he merely said 'Yes.' Then he added with a twinkle in his eye, 'But you should have shaved first, before coming here this morning.' It was all a bit of fun and yet Kitchener meant it, for he liked neatness."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Art by the Yard.

Long had the poor young artist waited for his first patron. And now a prosperous looking man stood before him.

"Pictures?" said the painter, trying to hide his eagerness. "Certainly I have some to—er—dispose of. What subjects would you like to see, all general landscape or what?"

The stranger looked blankly at him.

"Don't care much about subjects," he replied. "What I want is something about three feet long and 18 inches wide to hide a crack in the wall."—Chicago Herald.

True, but Harsh.

"Why did you strike this man?" asked the judge, sternly. "He called me a liar, your honor," replied the accused. "Is that true?" asked the judge, turning to the man with the muzzed-up face. "Sure it's true," said the accused. "I called him a liar because he is one, and I can prove it." "What have you to say to that?" asked the judge of the defendant. "It's got nothing to do with me," replied the man with an unexpected reply. "Even if I am a liar I guess I've got a right to be sensitive about it, ain't I?"—Philadelphia Star.

Bear Mountain Service.

A new feature of the Day Line service this year is the regular stopping of the morning south bound steamer at Bear Mountain, arriving there at 9:50 a. m. and on the return this steamer leaves Bear Mountain at 4:30 p. m. Everyone along the Hudson should know that this great mountain tract of 28,000 acres is becoming one of the world's most famous parks. Its operation is entirely free from any political taint or "catch penny methods." It is as free as the air, orderly and charming. Great numbers of rowboats are on the beautiful Highland Lake; there are open playgrounds on all sorts, swings, etc. are for all and are free. Splendid rides and mountain trails entice one in all directions. A great Casino is the central feature of the park and affords shelter, in case of rain, and food is sold there at as reasonable prices as can be made.

GLASCO.

Glasco, June 28.—A recruiting outfit from Catskill arrived in town Saturday evening with colors flying and bagpipe sound, and succeeded in arousing the latent patriotism of several of our young men who were willing to go to the Mexican border.

The recruits were Earl Weeks, Edward Teutler and Leopold Naccarato.

An auto party consisting of Frank H. Fatam, Jenn Verhaue, Jr., George Pelaroy, Ward Mickel, Frank Schneider, Salvator Brokaw and "Puddin'" Muraballa visited Camp Whitman at Beekman on Sunday.

The "New Idea" Cabinet

"Your own idea of what a kitchen cabinet ought to be"

The sport smock is indeed a sensible investment, because it can readily be worn over any skirt. These garments are shown now in numerous attractive combinations, that is to say, contrasting collar and cuffs with the stitching to match. The illustration shows a white linen smock with rose linen collar and cuffs. It is both youthful and cool looking.

ARD PLACE TO PLAY

Shortstop Most Difficult Position on the Diamond.

Account of Long Throw Player Must Make His Plays Quick and Clean—Third Base is Easiest Position to Play.

That shortstop is the most difficult of the seven fielding positions to play the opinion of all good judges among baseball men.

The shortstop has as many names as the second baseman, and they are usually much more difficult. While the guardian of the round sack has oceans of time in which to make his plays to first base, the short felder, on account of the long longer throw, must make his plays as clean as a whistle. Plays to right are exceptionally difficult. He has to cover a world of ground, and he must follow up most of his plays by a long and accurate throw. He must do his share of touching runs at second base. In many cases, in that of Bancroft of the Phillies, does practically all of the covering of second base on thrown balls prevent stealing.

While all are agreed that shortstop is the most difficult place to play in the infield there is not much unanimity about the easiest place to play, opinion being divided between this and second base. The preponderance, however, is in favor of third base, where chances are less numerous, and where there is only one or two difficult situations that can arise. The third baseman's throw is not as a rule, so difficult as that of the shortstop. He plays rather close in, as a rule; gets his ball quickly, and has more time to get it away. The third baseman has a hard time when there is a man on second base, with a batter up who is either hit or bunt. The felder in does not know just what is coming off. If he plays back the batter will lay down a bunt and beat it out.

Shortstop Bancroft.

If he plays too close up on the base a clever hitter is likely to slip past him for a clean hit. But, if it all in all, the third base player is more mechanical than that at second and the number of chances to be taken is vastly less. Of the four field positions it seems to be the most difficult to cover provided a man in the arm and the mechanical ability.

MONTREAL SECURES A STAR

Her Muddell, Former Brooklyn Empiro, Has Speed, a Splitter and a Wonderful Curve Ball.

The Montreal Internationals seem to be made a ten-strike in the signing of pitcher Muddell, a former Brooklyn Empiro. The Brooklyn Standard, speaking of Muddell, says: "Muddell has speed, a good splitter and a wonderful curve ball. Ball players have seen him in action declare a coming star." Muddell is a 16-year-old, 5 feet 10 inches tall, and weighs 168 pounds. He is only twenty and should have a bright future.

OWNS CARRY BIG PAY ROLL

Ident Ball Says It Will Amount to $138,000—Talent Sent to Minors is Included.

resident Ball of the St. Louis Browns is quoted as saying that his roll for players this year will run $138,000. This includes, presumably, 25 talent sent to the minors, but the Browns are obliged to pay 10 per cent of the salaries on that. Mr. Ball says his pay roll larger than that of any other club in the two majors, and there is absolutely no way for it to be reduced much, since all contracts are ironclad.

ATES ARE NOT FOR SALE

Ident Dreyfus Says No One Has Made Him an Offer for Pittsburgh National Team.

resident Barney Dreyfus of the Pittsburgh Pirates, denies the story that the team was for sale. "The story was to me," said he, "and is not true. I never have offered the Pittsburgh club for sale to anyone and never made an offer to me for it. Furthermore, the Pittsburgh club is not for sale." Dreyfus is over 50 per cent of the club.

LAWS OF NEW YORK—By Authority.

CHAP. 371.
AN ACT to amend the public health law in relation to the care and maintenance of carriers of disease.

Became a law May 1, 1916, with the approval of the Governor. Passed, three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Chapter forty-nine of the laws of nineteen hundred and nine, entitled "An act in relation to the public health, constituting chapter forty-five of the consolidated laws," is hereby amended by adding new section to be known as section thirty-six, and to read as follows:

§ 36. Providing for the care and maintenance of carriers of disease. Whenever an individual declared by the state commissioner of health as being a carrier of typhoid fever bacilli and whenever, for the protection of the public health, the commissioner of health orders that such individual be confined to a hospital or institution, or whenever, in accordance with rules and regulations adopted by the state commissioner of health, a carrier of typhoid fever is prevented from carrying on any occupation which would enable him to gain a livelihood, such individual may be given hospital or institutional care under the surveillance of the local health officer at the expense of the state if such hospital or institution is available and when in the opinion of the state commissioner of health such individual may be cared for at home or in a private family the commissioner of health shall cause the same to be provided for the protection of the public health the local health officer or overseer of the poor shall, in accordance with rules and regulations adopted by the commissioner of health, be authorized to contract for the care of such individual or for the care of such individual by any local overseer of the poor or charities approved by the commissioner of health. When no such hospital or institution is available and when in the opinion of the state commissioner of health such individual may be cared for at home or in a private family the commissioner of health shall cause the same to be provided for the protection of the public health the local health officer or overseer of the poor shall, in accordance with rules and regulations adopted by the commissioner of health, be authorized to contract for the care of such individual or for the care of such individual by any local overseer of the poor or charities approved by the commissioner of health. A verified statement of any such approved expense hereunder shall be transmitted by the local health officer or overseer of the poor to the state commissioner of health. The commissioner of health shall examine this statement and if satisfied that the same is correct and necessary in accordance with rules and regulations adopted by him he shall audit and allow the same and when so audited the amount thereof shall be paid by the state, constituting a warrant of the comptroller to such institution or local poor office.

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, as:

I have compared the preceding with the original law on file in this office, and hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript thereof and of the whole of said original law.

FRANCIS M. HUGO, Secretary of State.

So in original.

HOW MILK SHOULD BE KEPT CLEAN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., June 28.—The three "C's" for the proper care of milk in the home, according to the dairy specialists of the U. S. department of agriculture are:

Keep milk clean, cold, covered. Milk is a highly perishable food and the length of time it will remain sweet and safe, especially for children, depends, the specialists say, almost entirely upon the constant care it receives from cow to consumer. Milk passes through three agencies—the producer, the dealer and the consumer. If the first two have done their part, clean, safe milk will be delivered, thoroughly chilled, to the consumer. The consumer's responsibility begins the moment the milk is delivered at his doorstep.

Because milk poured from vessel to vessel on the street is very liable to contamination from dust, manure particles and germs, milk is best delivered in capped bottles. If bottled milk cannot be obtained, the housewife should try to have someone in the family receive the milk in a clean, scalded utensil, cover it instantly, and put it without delay into the refrigerator, or the coldest available place. Under no circumstances should an uncovered pitcher, bowl or pan be left out on the porch to receive bulk milk. The vessel, both before and after the milk is poured into it, is accessible to flies and collects particles of dust and dirt.

Even in the case of bottled milk, however, the consumer must see that the bottle is not left out in the heat for a moment longer than is necessary. Milk should be delivered and kept at a temperature of 50 degrees Fahrenheit or lower—the colder the better. At such temperatures bacteria develop very slowly and milk undergoes little change until consumed. A slight rise in temperature above this point, however, permits bacteria to multiply rapidly and brings about rapid deterioration of the milk, which may render it unfit for ordinary use and make it highly dangerous for babies and little children. For this reason, bottled milk or other milk should not be allowed to remain in a warm place, as on a sunny porch or in a hot kitchen, for a moment longer than is necessary.

Delivery of Milk in Hot Weather.

In hot weather the best plan is to have the milkman put the milk directly into the refrigerator, because at that time of year milk can not be kept properly without ice. If a refrigerator is not available, provide a small box containing ice, and if ice is unobtainable, provide some tight container with insulated walls that keep the heat from getting rapidly to the cold milk. A homemade fireless cooker is admirable for this purpose, especially if partially filled with ice. In the absence of any of these devices, arrange with the milkman not to leave the milk in the sunlight, but to put it in the coolest, shadiest place around the house.

Handling Milk in the Home.

In handling milk around the home, do not pour it from one vessel to another until it is to be consumed. Do not let the bottle of milk remain out of the refrigerator a moment longer than is necessary. Keep the milk covered, using paper caps or an inverted tumbler on bottles, or storing it in covered utensils. Any household utensil that is to be used for keeping milk should first be cleaned and thoroughly scalded. Before opening a bottle of milk, wash and wipe the neck and outside of the cap with water and a clean cloth. The little depression on the top of the cap may collect dust or water and any milk that leaks out may attract flies. Lift out the cap with a pointed instrument, so that the outside of the cap, which may be contaminated, will not be pushed down into the milk. Each time the milk is to be poured from the bottle it is a wise precaution to wash the neck as described.

Milk in a Refrigerator.

The refrigerator where milk is stored should be cleaned regularly, special care being given to keeping the drip pipe free and clean. The ice rack also should be cleaned and any place where food is kept or milk stored should be scalded occasionally with a soda solution. The refrigerator, even though cold, may quickly be contaminated by a few drops of spilled milk, or by small particles of food. No matter how clean the refrigerator, milk should never be kept in an open vessel. As milk absorbs odors easily such food as fish, cabbage or onions should not be kept in proximity to it.

Clean Empty Bottles.

As soon as a milk bottle is emptied, rinse it thoroughly with cold water. Do not return dirty bottles and do not use milk bottles except to hold milk. Returning dirty bottles to the milkman may mean that a few days later either you or your neighbors will get contaminated milk. Milk bottles should never be taken into a sick room. In case of infectious or contagious disease, all bottles should be boiled thoroughly and should not be returned to the dealer without the express permission of the attending physician. Such diseases easily can be made epidemic through disregard of this precaution.

Where There are Children.

Care of milk, important for all, is a vital necessity in a home where there are children. It is absolutely essential to the safety of babies. No intelligent mother will leave to an ordinary servant the task of caring for or preparing milk for her baby. Mothers of small children should get, from their own physicians, explicit directions for the proper handling of milk and for cleaning and sterilizing nursing bottles. Pamphlets on infant feeding may be obtained from the municipal milk stations or health officers. Milk for babies can not be kept too cold, and too much care can not be given to keeping it clean and covered.

Further information on this subject may be had by writing to the U.

COMPANY LEAVES ARMORY 8 O'CLOCK

In accordance with Mayor Camfield's proclamation, most of the business houses in town will not open Thursday morning until after Company M has departed in order that the employees may have an opportunity of taking part in the demonstration.

Company M's Escort.

Company M will be escorted from the armory to the Rhinebeck ferry by the Old Guard and the members of the newly organized depot company.

Company M will leave the armory promptly at eight o'clock. Fourteen taps on the fire alarm will be sounded at seven o'clock, and all the members of the Old Guard and the depot company should be in their places on Andrew street as soon after that time as possible as the departure from the armory cannot be delayed. All members of the Old Guard are requested to supply themselves with flags.

Formation of Parade.

The order of parade from the armory to the ferry will be as follows: Platoon of police.

Barnham Drum Corps.
The Old Guard, under command of Captain B. J. Hornbeck.
Kingston City Drum Corps.
Depot Company, under command of Captain Everett Fowler.

Muller's Band.
Company M, under command of Captain Frank L. Meagher.

The line of march will be on Broadway to the Strand, to the Rhinebeck ferry house, where the members of Company M will embark for Rhinebeck.

Only Company M on the Boat.

On reaching the Strand, the Old Guard and the depot company will form in double column of fours, and from there to the ferry will march at the side of the street in order to give Company M a clear passageway to the ferry. Only the members of Company M will be allowed on the ferry. The three bands which will appear in the parade have volunteered their services and Muller's band will have for its drum major James S. Barber, who has served with the old Company M during the Spanish War and who has been connected with the National Guard for eighteen years.

All farewells must be said before the company leaves the armory as there will be no opportunity afterward. The company will entrain immediately on reaching Rhinecliff.

Communion at St. Mary's.

Those members of Company M who attend service in St. Mary's Church will receive holy communion at the six o'clock mass on Thursday morning.

Sanitarium Will Assist.

The sisters in charge of the Benedictine Sanitarium have announced that the doors of the sanitarium will be open to the members of the families of Company M for any medical or surgical treatment they may require while the company is in the service. No credentials will be required and there will be no red tape attached to the offer which is open to any person applying who is dependent on some member of the company. The sisters in charge will be delighted to show their patriotism in this practical manner.

Excursion Postponed.

The excursion to Orange Lake of the graduating class of St. Mary's parochial school and the members of the eight o'clock choir, which was to have been held on Thursday has been deferred until Saturday owing to the desire of the excursionists to stay at home and give Company M a send off. The excursion will be held on Saturday morning leaving Rondout on the steamer Albany at 7 o'clock.

A Related Courtesy.

Directors of the Y. M. C. A. on Tuesday extended the privileges of the swimming tank to the members of Company M and to say that the offer was accepted, in putting it mildly, the men going to the big pool by details of a score or more. Today the tank offered a diversion for numbers.

OUR BOYS OF COMPANY M.

Hark! I hear the bugle sounding,
High upon the morning air,
Calling brave boys to the colors,
For their country, duty and dear.

Lead and clear and sweet it rises,
Sounding long, triumphant, clear,
As they answer to the roll call,
Each one proudly saying: "Here."

Now our gallant boys go marching,
Marching bravely to the war,
And we trust they'll all come marching
Home again when it is over.

On before them goes their captain,
Brave and loyal, kind and true,
Proudly leads the boys about them,
Stars and stripes, red, white and blue.

Raise the standard high—still higher,
Let it never trail in dust,
Always bravely guard "Old Glory"
While in tied we put our trust.

And the ones left home to ponder
On the ways of war and men,
Will pray to God to safely bring them Home again—our Company M.

Tridium at St. Peter's.

In preparation for the Feast of the Sacred Heart a tridium, that is, a three days' spiritual retreat, will take place at St. Peter's Church. Services will begin this evening at 7:45 and will close on Friday evening. The exercises will consist of Sacred Heart devotions, sermon, benediction, confession and communion. Confessions will be heard this evening and tomorrow afternoon and evening. One of the fathers from Esopus will assist in the confessional, and will preach throughout the exercises.

That is the bitterest of all, to wear the yoke of your own wrongdoing—Elliot.

MAJOR CHANDLER IS NOT A GENERAL

As Clearly Stated In The Freeman on Tuesday He Has Not Been Promoted in Rank Nor Has His Pay Been Increased.

Here is an easy lesson in military matters that it is earnestly hoped will be read and mastered by those ignorant persons heretofore unable to understand that the fact of having been assigned to staff duty has not made Major Chandler a general or anything else than a major in the Tenth Infantry. Although The Freeman plainly stated the facts on Tuesday evening and referred to the gentleman as "Major Chandler," the B. S. L. has insisted the major is a general and receiving a salary of anywhere from $600 a month up to $600 a week, according to the virility of the imagination of the particular B. S. L. who tells the story. Perhaps these definitions, given in the International Dictionary, will clear up the matter:

"An adjutant is a staff officer, who assists the commander of a squadron, battalion, regiment, or garrison in the details of field or garrison duty; any staff officer in a smaller or larger body of troops, with similar functions."

"Adjutant-General—The principal staff officer of an army, corps, division, or brigade, as of State Militia, through whom the commanding general receives communications and issues military orders. In the United States army the officer senior in rank of those in the Adjutant General's department has the title of The Adjutant General, the other officers have the title of Adjutant General (without the definite article). It is insignia of a shield of gold or silver. In the British army he is general officer of high rank assisting, and directly responsible to, the commander in chief."

Major Chandler of the Tenth Infantry has been assigned to duty on the staff of General Lester, commanding the brigade of which the Tenth Regiment is a part. He has not been promoted—merely assigned to duty at brigade headquarters, and being assigned to act as brigade adjutant. This is a mark of confidence and an honor, but his military rank is still that of major and his pay that of a major, which is $3,000 a year. This has created no vacancy in the Tenth Regiment to be filled by promotion. A captain may be assigned as acting major, and the officers of his company moved up one step as "acting," as the entire matter is one of temporary assignment.

SECRET OF A MOTHER BIRD.

How Does the Chimney Swift Get Her Brood Up the Flue?

In the autumn chimney swift nests often made the chimney smoke, and they had to be fished out or knocked down by lowering a pine branch on a rope from the roof.

Once upon a time, of course, these swallows built in hollow trees. But a pair of them, flying over Plymouth in 1621, spied something which looked like a new kind of tree, and the breed was on its way to a new procedure.

Possibly the fact that chimneys are safer from squirrels, coons, owls and other possible enemies was a factor in determining the change. Then, too, it is undoubtedly easier to find chimneys today than hollow trees. I well remember, as a boy, hearing a noise in one of our chimneys and pulling out the stovepipe hole cap in my chamber. There, directly opposite the opening, perched on a protruding brick, a swift was building a nest of sticks!

I watched the whole process, fascinated by the sticky muddle which the bird secreted in her salivary glands to fasten the sticks together, and after the mother was sitting gradually got her so tame—or, rather, sufficiently subdued her wildness—that she would remain occasionally on the nest when the cap was removed. My great desire was to see how she got the young birds up the chimney after they were large enough to leave the nest, but, alas, that feat was accomplished one day when I wasn't looking! I felt certain then that she must have carried them up in her bill, though I was laughed at for my belief.

Has any one observed a chimney swift getting her young up the flue? Curiously enough, I myself have never had another chance to watch—Walter Prichard Eaton in Harper's Magazine.

HOME IN ITS TRUE SENSE.

Each Must Help to Make It, but One Alone Can Mar It.

To say of the home which marriage ought to create that it is "a man's kingdom, a child's paradise and a woman's world" is to blur its meaning.

The home is no one's kingdom, no one's paradise, no one's world. The only kingdom it resembles is the kingdom of heaven, because it is within you. Home is dependent for its reality—and its reality is as deep as anything we know—upon a condition of spirit.

This indeed is embodied or at least shadowed forth in that physical symbol—the sheltering roof, the fireplace, the common table—but it is dependent on no one of these.

For Omar the symbol was the loaf, the jug and the bowl; for Deirdre and Naisi it was the tent "as tidy as a beehive or a linnet's nest," or the open sky "among the snipe and plover."

Home means love and companionship and mutual dependence, the spirit of common service and of common loyalty. It may be achieved by a husband and wife or by a family or by two friends or even by a single person who has the home feeling toward the world without.

To say that it is the woman's hardest task to make the home is to miss its most exquisite meaning. No one of the group can make the home, though any one can mar it. It must be made by all for it is all—Atlantic Monthly.

Phiander Perkins of the Notch

How a Confirmed Bachelor Became a Benedict

By CHARLES S. PEARSE

Harkin's general store was the town club, and around the round stove which stood in a square sand box the members gathered summer and winter. There were regulars and transients in this village seclusion, some arriving soon after the shutters were taken down and who hurried back from their dignities. Occasional visitors were rather lightly regarded and their opinions, expressed in an unguarded moment, instantly dispensed. Well whitened chairs and benches surrounded the stove, and from a creaky Windsor armchair sacred to himself Phiander reigned. The rest of the furniture was by common consent the roost of the regulars.

One morning an impressive person stopped his "eight" at the store to get a road map, and in order to get some information that the map did not seem to cover he pushed himself into the circle about the stove, interrupting a line of observations by Phiander on crops.

Following a lead to matters of traveling abroad, he was soon holding it over his audience that he had been all over Europe, had visited the pyramids and Persia, Manila and Madagascar, Australia and the Argentine. He had crossed the Andes and the isthmus and had a speaking acquaintance with the equator. During this gratuitous travelogue many a side glance was directed by the senators to note the effect on Phiander Perkins, who after awhile paused in stalling his pipe stem with a stalk of timothy and, looking severely over his spectacles at the intruder, inquired, "Have you ever been to Great Notch?"

"Great Notch?" asked the traveler. "Great Notch? Where is that?"

"Haven't seen Great Notch? Well, mister, you've got a great deal to see yet!" And the traveler departed in high dudgeon, slamming the door after him.

Above the village and perhaps half a mile therefrom stood the castle of Phiander Perkins in a gap in the hills called Great Notch. Famous in the country roundabout as the views from that much favored region. To the south, the line of the Orange mountain, dotted with the villas of the commuters, and as the eye sweeps east there is seen the outline of Staten Island, somewhat obscured by the vapors from sundry oil refineries, whence come that precious fluid which makes the motor horn own brother to the crack of doom.

Here at the Notch dwelt Phiander Perkins in a three roomed bungalow built by himself. Some ten acres of land, including a pasture and a wood lot, a kitchen garden and a corn patch, a cow stable and a producing henhouse, rounded out the demesne. Some estates are grander, some are larger, but none ever fitted the owner better.

Contentment perches on its ridge-poles, purs from the cat, wags from Towser's tail and sings from the kettle.

Phiander had never married, and when twitted about it by those who dared he was moved to make some pithy remarks about being compelled to wear one's coat and shoes in the house, to tolerate housecleaning by the calendar instead of by the thermometer and spending real money for feathered headgear, and so forth. He sniffed in scorn when some santonin intimated that he had heard it said that, though a man might live to a ripe age in single harness, he was bound to trot double some time and therefore it was best to start young and get broke, for the longer postponed the greater the ordeal would be complicated. To all this he would say "Fudge," milled his cow, waded his own butter, cooked his meals when he was hungry and performed the inside and outside chores with neatness and dispatch.

"Providence never intended me to trot double. No calico in mine. If I am late," he told his cronies, "I don't have to select the most plausible or several excuses to hand out for home consumption."

"Oh, Phiander, you are well armored except in one spot! Your plating is complete—almost; you are invulnerable—nearly!"

"Well, I got what I was looking for. I sold the property, and I got soaking, sopping wet. Harkin, if you have the Late one afternoon Israel Harkin approached the forum and asked if anybody was going up street pretty soon. Phiander said he was willing to go on the errand, as he was leaving for home in a few minutes. "I want to get you to take this flannel up to Hiram," said Israel.

"How is Hiram anyway?" asked some one.

"Sick abed with inflammatory rheumatism," Israel told them. "Even since his wife died ten years ago he hasn't had any one to look after him properly. He hasn't had his victuals regular and hasn't had any of the comforts of home. He ought to have a housekeeper. Hiram is pretty 'near,' you know, and is as contrary as a red heifer. I've had a trained nurse to come down from town to take care of him. Hiram is well fixed. He can afford it. The pay is twenty-five a week."

"Where," blew Phiander, "she must be pretty good! One of those young things in a striped dress and a cap as big as a trade dollar?"

"No, sir! Her name is Mrs. Samuel P. Simpson, and she's got more sense than I ever seen before inside of a calico dress. Hiram, he's got his master at last!"

"Hiram's Master him?" And Phiander smiled broadly. "Let's have the flannel, Israel."

Answering Phiander's resonating blows of the knocker on Hiram Harkin's front door, a comely person promptly appeared in a spotless blue and white uniform and an ample snowy cap, fairly radiating protection and comforting assurance. It seemed to Phiander as though she might be capable of making those little motherly clucks peculiar to brooding hens.

"My name is Phiander Perkins. I've brought some flannel for Hiram from his brother at the store," and Phiander bowed awkwardly and knew it.

"Come right in, Mr. Perkins, and take a seat in the parlor while I get the flannel on Mr. Harkin. He will be glad to see you. I won't be more than five minutes."

"I don't know as I have time," faltered Phiander, who had all the time there was. However, she had already shut the door and all but pushed him into the best room. He quickly noticed that a revolution had taken place in that temple and was soon cheerily bidden to Hiram's room, a chair was placed for him and the door closed. The sufferer was trussed up in bed like a large fowl prepared for the oven.

"Phiander, I am glad you have come. I need the support of a friend. I feel like a cornshuck in a gale of wind. I cannot realize that I am in my own house or that I'm myself at all."

"The first thing she did when she got here was to fire all the medicine in the house out of the back window, and then she fled me as aforesaid. After that she got four women and a boy and cleaned house in three hours. I overheard from Stebbins' boy they got a wheelbarrow load of dirt out. The furniture is all reset. I don't seem to have anything to say in my own house—me that was born here. Phiander, I don't think I can stand it. What would you do about it?"

"Do about it? Do about it? You old salt mackerel, you've needed freshening for the last ten years! You just do what you are told. You don't know when you are well off. Just relax on your old rusty hinges and surrender to—superior power."

"Huh! You wouldn't, Phiander."

"Well," said that person dryly, "I don't have to. I'll be around tomorrow to see that you are obeying orders."

Phiander was conscious of a sense of satisfaction in being on the side of the ruling spirit in the house and showed as much when he was taking his leave.

"Good day, ma'am," he offered blandly. "You will find your patient a little contrary, but your coming is the best thing that could happen to him. He wants training more than any man I know, and if this spell does not kill him he will come out of it a new critter. I'll drop in once in awhile. Any help that I can give will be rendered most gladly."

Phiander was conscious of a sense of satisfaction in being on the side of the ruling spirit in the house and showed as much when he was taking his leave.

"Phiander," lamented Hiram Harkin the next day, "she's had all the windows open. She sent down to the carpenter shop and got Abner up here. They pretty near tore the side of the house out getting some of the windows open. They hadn't been raised since the house was built! Neither my mother nor Mrs. Harkin would have them open on account of flies or dust or the cold. Mrs. Simpson says it isn't safe to live in a trunk with the lid down. Now, what do you think about all these notions?"

"Hiram, she will make a man of you yet. You have lived in this old cocoon till you are as afraid of a mouthful of fresh air as a tramp is of a shower bath."

"By the way, Hiram," inquired Phiander pointedly, "how about Samuel P.?"

"Samuel P.? Samuel P. who?"

"Samuel P. Simpson, Hiram, her husband. Can't he support her?"

"Why, Phiander, she's a widow."

"Oh!" said Phiander Perkins.

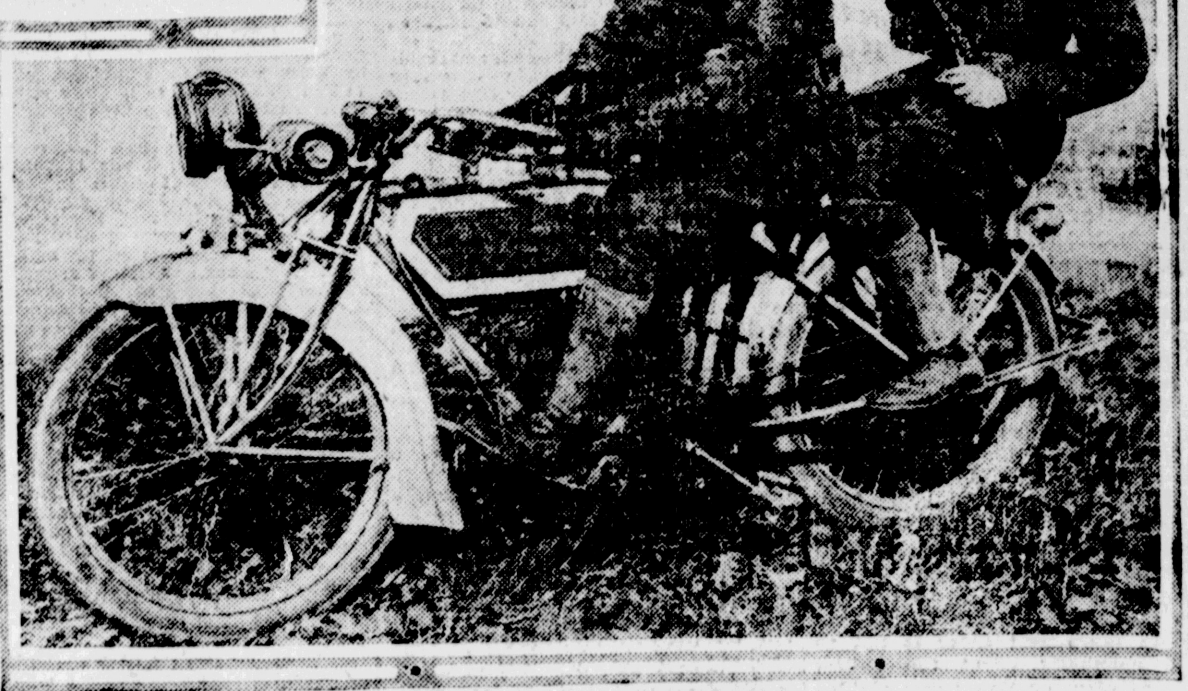

Late in the fall of that year Phiander asked if any one in the senate had a goose bone that would apply to the state of Ohio.

"I must go out there to look after some land that I took in trade some years ago, and I will sell it by the gallon or I will take so and so per foot board measure for the standing timber if there is any."

As nobody had the desired article, Phiander took a chance and left for the west the following day, escorted to the train by the entire deliberative body from Harkin's store. In ten days he was back again in pretty bad shape with rheumatism.

"Well, I got what I was looking for. I sold the property, and I got soaking, sopping wet. Harkin, if you have the address of Mrs. Samuel P. Simpson I wish you would write her to take passage for Great Notch at the earliest possible moment. I'm in for a siege something like what Hiram had, and I'm going to take the same medicine." Phiander was driven home by one of the senators, who also volunteered to attend to him and the chores until expert relief arrived.

"MARRY YOU? NOT IN A THOUSAND YEARS! BESIDES, I'M GOING TO ASK HER MYSELF!"

As welcome as sunshine after rain, Miranda Simpson turned up the next morning bright and early.

A wave of pure joy such as Phiander had never known broke over him at sight of this angel of mercy and washed him up to high water mark.

"Mrs. Simpson, you are a raft to a shipwrecked sailor. You are a bucket of water to a dry camel. I resign. I surrender. Feed me liniment or rub it in. You may turn this mansion inside out and shake it, only bring me around like you did Hiram Harkin."

Mrs. Simpson took the nearest rocker. "Mr. Perkins," she said, "surrender is a very good medicine, and now to get you comfortable. After that we will try to get things shipshape. Never mind; I'll find everything, never fear."

In a few days Phiander was taking refreshing naps and absorbing all the nourishment that was considered good for him.

One evening Hiram Harkin dropped in. Phiander noticed that he had a new suit of clothes and that his hair and beard had recently been trimmed.

"Phiander, I understand that you are coming around all right. Couldn't be otherwise with the kind of cure you're getting."

Hiram would not sit down, but kept stirring around as though he had something on his mind. Finally he blurted out, "Mrs. Simpson, I think I'll sit by the fire in the front room till you are through fussing with Phiander," and went out.

"Did you want to see me about anything, Mr. Harkin?" asked Mrs. Simpson a few minutes later, looking into the front room.

"Yes, ma'am," said Harkin eagerly, getting up from his chair and shutting Phiander in.

"By the ten plagues of Egypt, that old rascal has spruced himself up to come here to my house and court my nurse under my very nose!"

Just then a boy's voice was heard in the back entry asking if he could get a quart of milk, and Mrs. Simpson bustled forth to serve him.

Phiander Perkins dashed into the front room.

"Look here, you old horse mackerel, have you got the nerve to come here to my house a-sparking my nurse? Well, here is your old plug hat. Use it. Git! Marry you! Not in a thousand years! Besides, I'm going to ask her myself!"

It is barely possible that some of this may have reached the widow, for it could have been heard about a mile on a clear night.

Then from the entry door there came severely, "Phiander Perkins, back to bed this very instant!"

"Yes, ma'am," said Phiander, diving into his room.

"Good night, Mr. Harkin. I'm very busy now." And the Widow Simpson returned to the back entry and gave the boy three doughnuts to go with the milk.

One hot afternoon the next summer two countrymen were driving home ward through the picturesque Great Notch.

"Hello, there is Phiander Perkins takin' a long pull of well water out of a tin dipper! I'm going up to the house to ask him for a drink. I'm awful dry."

"Who's the lady on the stoop shell-pens? I thought Phiander was an old bach."

"Why, that's Mrs. Phiander Perkins, the Widow Simpson that was."

Danced in Court.

An unusual scene was once witnessed in a French law court, the civil tribunal at Nantes. The proprietor of a local theater had engaged a young lady dancer, whose performances at rehearsals did not come up to his expectations. He therefore would not let her appear, and the fair dancer took action against him for breach of contract. The defendant alleged that she had not even learned the first steps of her art, and, here being a plain issue, the judge determined to decide for himself. A space was accordingly forthwith cleared on the floor of the court, and in these unusual surroundings the young lady duly went through her steps and prouettings. In the result the judge felt justified in certifying that she was quite an expert dancer and decided the case in her favor. Henceforth she advertised herself as the only dancer in the country with a legal certificate of proficiency.

How Leap Year Started.

Hampson in his "Medi Oevi. Kalendarium" quotes the following quaint tradition from an old Saxon treatise: "Some assert that the bissextus or leap day comes through this, that Joshua prayed to God that the sun might stand still for one day's length that he might sweep the heathen from the land that God had granted him and his followers. It is true that the sun did stand still for one day's length over the city of Gibeon, but the day went forward in the same manner as other days. And the bissextus is not through that, as some do think."

In France and some parts of Spain and Portugal there exists a tradition known as "the ghost of leap year."

Believers in this say that a marvellous monster annually appears on leap day and disarranges human affairs for the remainder of the year.

Bells in Ireland.

A peculiar interest attaches to the bells which tourists and collectors find in Ireland. It is said that it was St. Patrick who taught the monks and craftsmen how to make bells after he had gone to the Emerald Isle in 440. Many of the early bells remain and are examples of exquisite decoration. A copy of the bell cover of St. Patrick is now in the South Kensington museum and is a perfect example of Celtic art, while the silver bell of St. Mora, in the Wallace collection, is hardly less interesting. It is of a unique style, with its filigreed ornaments plaited and twisted and interlaced.—Exchange.

HIGH FALLS.

High Falls, June 28.—Mrs. W. L. Krom and daughter, Isabel, have gone to Pennsylvania, where they will spend some time at the home of Mr. Krom's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Christians and children of Astoria, L. I., are to spend the Fourth at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Niesh.

Mr. and Mrs. Festus Yeaple, and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Schoonmaker motored to Kingston on Saturday evening.

Mrs. W. L. Krom was in town on Saturday.

There was a stereopticon lecture given in the Reformed Church on Sunday evening. The topic was "Child Life in the World."

The subject of the Wednesday evening prayer meeting is "What is the Purpose of our Life on Earth?" Reference found in Eph. 2:10.

Miss Helen Krom, who graduated from Oneonta this June, is home for her summer vacation.

Miss Amanda Krom and niece, Mrs. Daniel Schoonmaker of Accord, are visiting friends at Claverack.

Mrs. H. Haggerty is a guest at the Whalen home.

Mrs. David Sherman was in town on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Niesh are employed at Spring Farm.

The Van Laers of Albany have come into their summer home.

Mrs. Joseph Yeaple, who has been spending some time at the home of her son, Claude Yeaple of Walden, returned home on Saturday. Her granddaughter, Hilda Yeaple, is to spend some time at her home here.

Miss Nettie Dym was in town on Monday.

Children's Day was observed in the Reformed Church on Sunday morning. Although the weather was stormy, there were quite a number present. They were well repaid for coming, as the program was excellent. Great credit should be given the children and the committee who had charge of the drilling. The flower committee should receive praise for the decorating.

HURLEY.

Hurley, June 28.—The return of some of our village folk indicates summer the weather notwithstanding. The latest arrivals are the Jansen family of Marlborough Road, Miss Ethel Elmendorf at the Elmendorf homestead and the Lockwood young men, Lloyd and Fred. These latter took a unique and pleasing manner to return after their year's work in Cornell College, where Lloyd has just graduated. They came by canoe from Cayuga Lake and the central waterways of the state into the Hudson river, finally landing at Rondout. There were a few difficult places to manage but the trip was made safely and delightfully.

The Rev. Joseph Mullett of Tillson was to have preached in the village church on Sunday but his car breaking down on the way hither, he was unable to complete the journey. The congregation which has assembled had service with Elmer Lockwood leading.

A strawberry festival is planned for Wednesday evening, June 28. The proceeds will go toward a thorough renovation of the church.

Dr. Sahler was in the village one day, took with a photographer, taking moving pictures of scenes along the street.

The mass of mud in the main village street has been removed, making less source of dust for the coming months.

Examinations and resulting marks have interested the village children and young folks lately, both those attending the village school and those in the Kingston high school. The highest mark yet reached is that attained by Ralph Miller of the high school, 100 per cent in algebra. We have one member of the graduating class in the high school, Miss Mabel Hiller.

Our village school closed on Wednesday last and will resume on Tuesday, September 5. Both teachers have been engaged for the coming year.

NEW HURLEY.

New Hurley, June 28.—Miss Martha Gladwin of Gardinertown spent a few days last week with friends in this place.

Leo Hammer has purchased a new Buick automobile of Charles Ronk.

Mrs. A. J. Nicoll has returned to her home in Delhi, Delaware county, after a three weeks' visit with Mr. and Mrs. Hallock Sutton.

Master Borden Monell, who has been quite ill, is able to be out again.

John McCord and son and daughter were guests at Eli Mackey's last Sunday.

The ladies of the congregation will meet at the church on Wednesday, June 28, at 10 o'clock, rain or shine, for the purpose of taking up the carpets and removing the things to the parsonage to get ready for the redecoration of the interior of the church, which will begin on that day. Each one is expected to bring her lunch.

There will be no preaching services in the New Hurley Church until further notice is given.

A number from this place attended the band concert at Walden last Friday evening.

H. W. Sutton and grandson of Clintondale were in this place on Saturday.

Miss Clarice and Marie Van Wyck are spending their summer vacation with their parents.

The Missionary Society will meet with Mrs. George Van Wyck on Thursday afternoon, July 6, at 2 o'clock. Leader will be Mrs. Van Wyck. Bible word, Harvest. Miss Davis of New York will attend this meeting.

No Servant Problem Here.

The servant problem has not bothered Mrs. H. I. Garland of Opeposca, La., according to the American Magazine. She has had one servant in her family for 42 years, a negro woman who commenced her duties as servant eight years before the Civil war began. The name of this paragon, who shows that the old-time dark devotion still exists, is Mrs. Sophie Simms.

COMMON AMERICAN BIRDS.

INTERESTING INFORMATION ABOUT THEM SUPPLIED BY THE BUREAU OF BIOLOGICAL SURVEY OF THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

COOPER'S HAWK

(Accipiter cooperi)

Length, about fifteen inches. Medium sized, with long tail and short wings, and without the white patch on rump which is characteristic of the marsh hawk.

Range: Breeds throughout most of the United States and southern Canada; winters from the United States to Costa Rica.

Habits and economic status: The Cooper's hawk, or "blue darter," as it is familiarly known throughout the South, is pre-eminently a poultry and bird-eating species, and its destructiveness in this direction is surpassed only by that of its larger congener, the goshawk, which occasionally in autumn and winter enters the United States from the North in great numbers. The almost universal prejudice against birds of prey is largely due to the activities of these two birds, assisted by a third, the sharp-shinned hawk, which in habits and appearance might well pass for a small Cooper's hawk. These birds usually approach under cover and drop upon unsuspecting victims, making great inroads upon poultry yards and game coverts favorably situated for this style of hunting. Out of 123 stomachs examined, 38 contained the remains of mammals. Twenty-eight species of wild birds were identified in the above-mentioned material. This destructive hawk, together with its two near relatives, should be destroyed by every possible means.

STONE RIDGE.

Stone Ridge, June 28.—Miss Laura Onslow, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Milton Elmendorf, left for the White Mountains on Sunday.

Don't forget the Fourth of July celebration to be held in this village. At 9:30 a. m. there will be a concert by the Weehawken Fife and Drum Corps; 10 o'clock, baseball game; 12 noon, dinner; 2 p. m., big parade; 3:30 o'clock, speech by Dr. R. H. Bord of Jersey City; 4:15, games and field sports; 6 o'clock, supper; 7:45 p. m., Boy Scout play, "A Strenuous Afternoon." Admission to the play will be twenty-five cents. The price will include ice cream.

Irvin Cornish has purchased an Overland car.

All grangers are asked to decorate their cars or wagons and meet at the Grange Hall at 1 p. m. on the Fourth of July, ready to participate in the parade to be held in this village.

The services in the Reformed Church on Sunday evening, July 2, will be held in the interest of the Anti-Saloon League and a representative of that society will address the congregation.

ULSTER PARK.

Ulster Park, June 28.—Mrs. Elmer Ellsworth, son, Harry, and Miss Mabel Terpening spent a few days at Poughkeepsie in company with Mr. and Mrs. L. Troutman of Jersey City. They motored to Poughkeepsie.

Mrs. Emile Knipps and son of College Point, L. I., have returned home, after spending some time with Mrs. J. Knipps.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Van Sickle and daughter of Hurley and Miss Hazel, Rose of New York city spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. J. Sahler.

Jason Sahler and Ernest Eckert spent Sunday in Poughkeepsie.

Miss Ethel Barley spent Sunday at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Ellsworth spent Friday with Elmer Ellsworth on the Grand View Farm.

Miss Lizzie Ellison is spending some time in Kingston.

Miss Mary Ellsworth of Port Ewen spent the week end with her sister, Mrs. S. A. Cole.

Miss Mildred and Julia Kennoch spent Friday with Miss Elizabeth Gerhardt at Kingston.

MODENA.

Modena, July 28.—In accordance with the request of the national department of labor that Sunday, July 2, be set apart as citizenship Sunday by all the churches, the pastor of the M. E. Church will preach on "The Essentials of Citizenship" at the morning service. At the evening service at 7:45 o'clock, the Rev. J. C. Eason, of the Anti-Saloon League, will speak.

The Fourth of July will be a big day in Modena. Beginning at 1 o'clock there will be a community celebration under the auspices of the M. E. Church. The program will include Judge Jenkins and other speakers. Music by the DuBois orchestra of Poughkeepsie. Various sports, such as old maid's race, three legged race, greased pig, greased pole, etc., and a special motion picture program in the evening. Refreshments of all kinds will be served on the church grounds.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)
New York, June 28.—A player on a tail-end team ought to hit from 10 to 30 points higher than he would if he were on a pennant battling crew," ventured a fan the other day.
"Howzat?"
"Well, pitchers rarely work their heads off against cellar chumps. Class tells in baseball. Usually before the fifth or sixth inning comes along, the good team is so far ahead that the game is practically sewed up. Therefore, the pitcher on the top-heavy team saves his arm. He doesn't pitch his mightiest. He lobs them over, and, of course, the batsmen get more hits, thus fattening their averages.
"Now take the case of the Giants and Larry Doyle last season," continued the fan. "In 1915 the Giants blew themselves to be first champion batsmen they have had for many years. Also, the Giants finished in the cellar. After August 15th they never had a chance to win the bunting.
"And so, from that time on, the opposing pitchers didn't work so awfully hard against the Giants—and Larry Doyle's average grew so large that at the end of the year he led the pack.

Lajoie And Others.
"Napoleon Lajoie never played on a championship team. Yet his batting average, year after year, was wonderful. His grand hitting mark ranks among the highest ever turned in. Only twice during his long career had Lajoie been on a club that actually was in the fight for any extended period. Opposing clubs rarely found it hard to beat Lajoie's team and so the rival pitchers frequently took it easy when heaving to Napoleon.
"Ty Cobb did his most tremendous hitting during the years when the Tigers were not actually in the fight for the bunting. During other years, when the British crowd kept in the fight all through the season, Ty faced pitchers who were pitching to the full limit of their arms and brains, in an effort to halt the Tigers.
"Joe Jackson averaged somewhere around .270 while he was with the Cleveland Club. He was shipped to the White Sox, a team that was in the pennant hunt for a while in 1915 and Joe turned in an average of .368 last year.
"Practically every batsman in the game hits far better during the last month of the season than he does during the first four weeks. But that is easily explainable. During the opening month of the campaign most of the pitchers are on edge. They twirl their darndest. And only the star fingers work during that period.

Aren't 'Autumn Blossoms.'
"But toward the fall end of the season managers of clubs that are out of the race, begin experimenting for the next season. They work their youngsters, fresh from the bushes. Veteran batters find it easy to connect with their twisters and slants, and, as a result, the averages fatten.
"You've often noticed, too, that some of the minor league batting stars, getting a major try-out in the fall show up well with the bludgeon. It seems then that the majority will land. But in the springtime they cannot do any consistent hitting. Here's the answer:
"The minor league batters, getting a fall trial in the majors, rarely face major league pitching. They go up against the minor league hurlers, who are getting their trial. The 'bush' hitters, therefore, face the same calibre and, of course, find no trouble maintaining their minor league averages."

Will Prove Second Time.
Failure to cite all interested parties when the will of Edwin Finkel of the town of Marlborough was proved before Surrogate Gill in the surrogate's court on March 28, last, resulted in the will being again proved before him on Tuesday, all the parties to whom a citation should be issued having been cited in the meantime. The will was executed March 1, 1916, and witnessed by John B. Ball and Irving Mackey, Jr., both of Marlborough, and disposes of an estate consisting of real property valued at $4,000 and personal property amounting to $3,500. Nettie Jordy of Nyack, the executrix, was represented by John B. Ball.

Short-Cake that's lo-o-o-n-g on goodness! Make it with Presto
Two cups "Presto," 2 level teaspoons sugar, 1 cup butter, 1 cup milk.
Mix together the "Presto" and sugar. Into this mixture work the butter with the tips of the fingers and then gradually add the milk, using a spoon to mix with. Press on a board dusted with "Presto" and roll about 1/2 inch thick, and then bake 20 minutes in a shallow pan in a hot oven. When done, split, separate and spread with butter. Put one layer on a large platter, cover with crushed berries, next to the top. Put the second layer on top of the berries and again cover with the crushed fruit. Serve with cream and sugar.

NEWBURGH DUMPS ITS CITY MANAGER

Councilmen Ignore Court Order and Discharge C. Fred Alber and Name Dr. Henry Wilson in His Stead.
With less than six months under Plan C, the Newburgh city council on Monday dismissed City Manager Fred C. Alber and appointed Dr. Henry Wilson in his place. The councilmen ignored a temporary injunction obtained by W. H. Whitehill restraining them from any action on the dismissal. The order is returnable in supreme court at Poughkeepsie on July 8 and in the meantime the councilmen are said to be in contempt of court.
The taxpayers' proceeding asserted that the dismissal of a man experienced in city affairs was planned for the purpose of appointing a man not qualified for the position and that the city will be the loser thereby. Dr. Wilson in a statement to the press asks a fair field and no heckling. He declares that he will work no miracles but will work to making Plan C a success.

SOUTH RONDOUT.
South Rondout, June 28.—The last meeting of the C. E. Society before the summer vacation was held on Sunday evening. The leader was Miss Emma Myers.
A meeting of the Ladies' Aid will be held at the home of Mrs. Isaac Hotelling on Wednesday evening.
The members of the Junior Endeavor have presented the church with a communion table.
The Rev. Gilbert L. LeSurd of Cranford, N. J., gave a very interesting talk to the interest of the Anti-Saloon League on Sunday evening.
The Rev. John Anthony and Mrs. Anthony are spending a couple of days this week with friends at Newburgh.
Our pastor gave a very interesting sermon on Sunday morning; the theme, "The Family Blessings," Genesis 48, 15 and 16.
Mrs. Dr. C. Coulter Charlton of Atlantic City and the Misses Mabel and Alta Charlton of Kentucky have been spending a few days with Mrs. Charlton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Cole.
Miss Bessie Hicks and niece, Florence Sheely, of Marlborough were guests at the home of Miss Hicks's brother, Clifford, over Sunday.
Chester Merritt, who has been spending several months at the home of his sister, Mrs. David Blodgett, on Front street, has accepted a position in Brooklyn.
Mrs. Cavanah and little grandson, who have been spending some time with Mrs. Cavanah's daughter, Mrs. Willard Blodgett, have returned to their home in Brooklyn.
Mrs. Ally Hamilton and daughter, Ruth, are visiting relatives in Blauvelt, N. J.
Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Clark of New York have rented furnished rooms of Miss Elizabeth Clair on Front street for the summer.
Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Cockfair attended the funeral of their aunt, Mrs. Susan Woolsey, at Milton on Friday.
Mrs. Clifford Hicks and daughter, Dorothy and Marian, visited Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hicks at Kingston on Friday.
On Wednesday, June 21, Miss Marguerite M. Harrigan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Harrigan of 926 Traphagen street, North Bergen, was united in marriage to John McNelis, Jr., of Connelly at St. Michael's Monastery Church, West and Stephens streets, West Hoboken. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Thomas, C. P., at a nuptial mass. The bride was attired in a gown of crepe de chine and clasped at her throat was a handsome diamond brooch, a gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of roses and sweet peas. The bride was attended by Miss Margaret McNelis, a sister of the groom, and George Harrigan, a brother of the bride, acted as best man. The ushers were Joseph Witzler, William Leiser, Herman Schnepke and George Maruz. The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a platinum lavalier. The ushers each received stick pins set with pearls. Immediately following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride. The house was tastefully decorated with palms and smilax. The couple received many handsome and useful presents, including a valuable silver set from the employees of the Independent Lamp and Wire Company, Weehawken. George Maruz, the bride's groom, was employed as a bookkeeper for a number of years. Mr. and Mrs. McNelis came to Connelly in the evening where a reception was held at the groom's home. The younger folks gave them a skimming during the evening.
School closed on Friday and after a short entertainment by the children ice cream and cake were served by the teachers, C. E. Longyear and Miss Roosa, and as Mr. Longyear is not going to return in the fall the school are presented him with a silk umbrella.

St. James's Missionary Society.
The Missionary Society of St. James's M. E. Church will hold its last meeting of the summer at the home of Mrs. Myron Teller, 203 Fair street, on Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. At this meeting the annual thank offering will be taken. Mrs. P. N. Chase will be in charge of the devotional exercises. The president hopes that every member will be present.

ONLY 3 FAIL IN CLASS OF 64

Kingston's Busy Street Liar was active again on Tuesday and circulated the report that only sixty per cent of the senior class of the high school would be graduated on Friday night, only that percentage having passed the requisite examinations.
As a matter of fact, all except three members of the senior class which comprises sixty-four members, will be graduated. The three who failed had depended on passing examinations in a number of subjects, but were unsuccessful in their efforts.
The percentage of the seniors who will be graduated therefore is 95.3 per cent, which is a high percentage, failure of ten per cent is not uncommon in high school classes, so that Kingston's percentage is something of which to be proud.

Hot Liners.
(By Frank G. Menke.)

Big Jeff Tesreau won't be traded to St. Louis for "Slim" Sallee. McGraw called off the deal after the way the "Ozark Bear" twirled against the Dodgers.

"Home Run" Baker has got the habit again. For the third successive day he lined out a circuit smash.
Connie Mack sent a Johnson to the firing line. He wasn't a good understudy for the great Walter.

Joe Jackson's bat set the Indians back another game.
The Braves are on the warpath. The Phillies were scalped again and now hold second place by a slender thread.

The Red Sox seem to be hitting their stride. The world champions are now only a game and a half from the top.

The Tigers are still in the hunt, while the Nationals are skidding fast.

The eastern teams are having the battle all to themselves in the national.
"Taming the Pirates" was successfully staged by the Cubs.

WERE DAVID DEE'S CHICKENS DYED?

Remarkable Change in Color of Two White Imported Chickens, Who Overnight Became Green and Red Respectively—Railroad Avenue Puzzled.
Despite the serious Mexican crisis facing the country Railroad Avenue had another problem on its hands, and as yet it has proved an unsolved mystery. But to get down to the facts in the case David Dee, a genial employe at the White Tile Lunch on that avenue. He is the owner of two imported chickens which he had placed for safe keeping in a box back of the lunch room. The other night he fed them as usual and noticed no change in their beautiful white plumage, but next morning when he went to feed his pets he was thunderstruck to find that from a pure snowlike white they had changed to a brilliant green and red color respectively.
Now the grave question before the soap box solvers of the nation's problems is whether it was the feed that David fed his pets that caused one to change to a green color and the other to a red, or whether some nuisances had opened the box, and abstracted the two chickens and liberally applied red and green paint to the plumage and then restored the fowls back to their abiding place.
It is said that Mr. Dee is positive that it was not the feed he fed the chicks that caused the change in color, but the transformation is due to old fashioned house paint.
While Mr. Dee leans to that opinion others who have seen the fowls incline to the theory that it was the feed.
When the fowls begin to moult the puzzle will probably be solved, until then any one may offer whatever solution that occurs.

MRS. GEORGE J. O'KEEFE

AMERICA NOW HAS "LADY NICOTINE" WHO WILL SUPPLY OUR ARMY BOYS WITH SMOKE.

New York, June 28.—America has a Lady Nicotine. She is Mrs. George J. O'Keefe, wife of Special Sessions Justice O'Keefe, and one of the most ardent charity workers in Brooklyn.

Mrs. O'Keefe will form an organization of women who will provide the American soldiers on the Mexican front with tobacco. While it is true that the government furnishes tobacco, Mrs. O'Keefe and her co-workers believe that the luxury of a "smoke" should be a real luxury.

As the government provides but one brand, America's Lady Nicotine will solicit all brands of cigars, cigarettes and smoking tobacco, so that the troopers will have a chance of getting their favorite brands.

Mrs. O'Keefe got her idea of providing tobacco for the American soldiers from Mrs. George Washington Loop, who is known as "My Lady Nicotine" by the soldiers in the muddy trenches of the allies. Mrs. Loop sent them 12,000,000 cigarettes, 260,000 pounds of smoking tobacco and 50,000 pipes. She is the daughter of the former Minister from Paraguay to France.

Lots Easier.
Bobby rushed out to meet his father the other night as he was returning from work and said breathlessly: "Oh, papa, I won't have to study hard at school any more." Now, Bobby had been doing far from well, and his father was pleased to hear of the new interest, hoping for better things.

Queen's Carriage.
By the beginning of the seventeenth century the use of carriages and coaches had become so prevalent in England that in 1601 the attention of parliament was drawn to the subject, and a bill "to restrain the excessive use of coaches" was introduced, which, however, was rejected on its second reading. In the early part of the century it was estimated that there were 6,000 in London and its vicinity.

BOY SCOUTS WILL ESCORT SOLDIERS

Preparedness is the Motto and For Ten Years the Scouts Have Been Practicing it—Will Prove This Tomorrow.

Troops 1, 2, 3 and 4, of the Boy Scouts and their officers, are ordered to meet at the Y. M. C. A. at 7:30 a. m. Thursday, rain or shine, to honor Company M, Tenth Regiment, N. G., N. Y. Your employers will grant this hour. All boys cannot be uniformed on account of the factories working on U. S. uniforms.

President Wilson surrounded by the officials of the Boy Scout movement, and Eagle Scouts in Washington on June 15, signed a bill which grants federal incorporation to the Boy Scouts of America. After writing his signature which makes this bill a law, the president presented the pen with which he had written his name to Colin H. Livingstone, of Washington, D. C., president of the National Council of the organization. It is seldom that a president makes or permits ceremony to the signing of bills, and the exception in this case was due to his great personal interest in the Boy Scout movement in which he followed Colonel Roosevelt and Mr. Taft as honorary president.

The officials of the movement recognize this law of federal incorporation to be perhaps the most important step in the development of the scout movement since the original charter was obtained from the government on February 10, 1910. It will give protection to the Boy Scouts of America from the claims of organizations, having in their program none of the features which have distinguished the Boy Scout movement from all other forms of work with boys "Boy Scouts" without authorization by persons or concerns who have endeavored to commercialize the interest of boys created by the Boy Scout movement.

Another very important result of the new law will be the adequate protection not only of the words "Boy Scouts" but of the various emblems of the movement. Under the National Council a program of activities and tests has been developed and examinations standardized, so that the scout uniform itself and the many badges which are awarded for proficiency, all stand for the very same things in all parts of continental and insular United States. Some imitations of the scout insignia have appeared and it was realized that unless the federal government provided adequate protection the time might come when imitations put forward by other organizations would destroy the meaning of the scout uniform and emblems, and so rob the boys of the country of the tremendous incentive which these insignia have been to boys to strive for the knowledge and the dexterity for which these emblems now stand. President Wilson's signing of the bill on June 15 put an end to this fear and preserves for the Boy Scouts of America one of its greatest assets.

The Boy Scout movement establishes modern educational facilities in activities in the great and healthful out of doors where may be the better developed physical strength and endurance, self reliance and the powers of initiative and resourcefulness, all for the purpose of establishing through the boys of today the very highest type of American citizenship.

The movement has grown rapidly in the past few years, until it is now organized in practically every community of 4,000 inhabitants and over, and in many smaller communities of the United States.

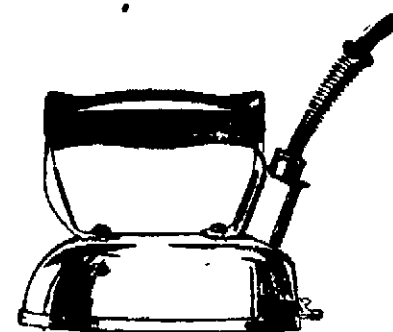

Their services on the occasion of the Ohio floods, the Gettysburg reunion in the inaugural ceremonies of President Wilson, and at the recent memorable reunion of the Grand Army of the Republic in Washington attracted nation-wide attention and received general commendation, particularly from the American National Red Cross and the officials of the federal and state governments. The importance and magnitude of its work is such as to entitle it to recognition by federal incorporation.

The Scout scheme is based upon the methods involved in educating the boy. It is a scheme of placing the boy on honor. In addition to requiring him to live up to a standard or code of laws, which insures development of character along proper lines, it requires him to study in order to pass certain tests of qualification. The passing of these various tests is recognized by the award of appropriate badges or medals and insignia.

If any boy can secure these badges without meeting the required tests, the badges will soon be meaningless, and one of the leading features of the scout movement will be lost. Likewise, with the uniform which designates the scout. At the present time this is protected by the use of insignia—a seal woven or stamped into cloth. All of these various badges and insignia are at present protected by the patent laws, but under the patent laws such protection is available for a limited period only. The passing of congress of this bill will, it is believed, provide the organization with proper protection for its distinctive insignia, the integrity of which is essential to the maintenance of the movement, and protect it from those who are seeking to profit by the good repute and high standing and popularity of the Scout movement by imitating it in name alone.

The identical language of this bill was incorporated in the bill with amendments thereto, known as H. R. 19,907, which was reported from the committee on the judiciary on February 3, 1915, with a recommendation that it, as so amended, do pass.

NEWBURGH COMPANY AT CAMP WHITMAN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Camp Whitman, Beekman, N. Y., June 28.—Company E, of the First Regiment of Infantry from Newburgh, reached here at 10 o'clock last night, having left Newburgh at 2 p. m. The company, which is 150 strong, or up to full war strength, is commanded by Captain Raphael Egan, a prominent lawyer and a member of the city commission of Newburgh. The first lieutenant is W. B. Penoyer, head bookkeeper of the Highland National Bank, and the second lieutenant is A. E. Brundage, member of the tobacco firm of J. W. Brundage & Co. Lieutenant Brundage is the most popular officer of the outfit, and he has taken pains to supply every member of the company with all the cigars, cigarettes and tobacco they can smoke.

The company had nothing but sandwiches to eat from the time they left Newburgh until this morning, when their supplies arrived. The cook, Clarence Martin, who was formerly chef of the Palatine Hotel in Newburgh, then prepared a good breakfast for the men. The company has 23 sets of brothers in its membership and there are three brothers Keefe. Sixty-eight of the men of the company are employees of the DuPont Fabrikoid Company of Newburgh. They are getting full pay from the company while they are away. The trumpeter of the company, Bert Smith, has three honorable discharges from the regular army, where he served three enlistments as a bugler and also wears the army medal for Philippine service.

The men are fully equipped and all are itching to get at the Mexicans. The First Regiment numbers over 1,700 men and is commanded by Col. C. H. Hitchcock.

COMPANY LEAVES ARMORY 8 O'CLOCK

In accordance with Mayor Canfield's proclamation, most of the business houses in town will not open Thursday morning until after Company M has departed in order that the employees may have an opportunity of taking part in the demonstration.

Company M's Escort.

Company M will be escorted from the armory to the Rhinebeck ferry by the Old Guard and the members of the newly organized depot company.

Company M will leave the armory promptly at eight o'clock. Fourteen taps on the fire alarm will be sounded at seven o'clock, and all the members of the Old Guard and the depot company should be in their places on Andrew street as soon after that time as possible as the departure from the armory cannot be delayed. All members of the Old Guard are requested to supply themselves with flags.

Formation of Parade.

The order of parade from the armory to the ferry will be as follows: Platoon of police, Barnham Drum Corps, The Old Guard, under command of Captain B. J. Hornbeck, Kingston City Drum Corps, Depot Company, under command of Captain Everett Fowler, Muller's Band, Company M, under command of Captain Frank L. Meagher. The line of march will be on Broadway to the Strand, to the Rhinebeck ferry house, where the members of Company M will embark for Rhinebeck.

Only Company M on the Boat.

On reaching the Strand, the Old Guard and the depot company will form in double column of fours, and from there to the ferry will march at the side of the street in order to give Company M a clear passageway to the ferry. Only the members of Company M will be allowed on the ferry. The three bands which will appear in the parade have volunteered their services and Muller's band will have for its drum major James S. Barber, who has served with the old Company M during the Spanish War and who has been connected with the National Guard for eighteen years.

All farewells must be said before the company leaves the armory as there will be no opportunity afterward. The company will entrain immediately on reaching Rhinebeck.

Communion at St. Mary's.

Those members of Company M who attend service in St. Mary's Church will receive holy communion at the six o'clock mass on Thursday morning.

Sanitarium Will Assist.

The sisters in charge of the Benedictine Sanitarium have announced that the doors of the sanitarium will be open to the members of the families of Company M for any medical or surgical treatment they may require. No credentials will be required and there will be no fee attached to the offer which is open to any person applying who is dependent on some member of the company. The sisters in charge will be delighted to show their patriotism in this practical manner.

Excursion Postponed.

The excursion to Orange Lake of the graduating class of St. Mary's parochial school and the members of the eight o'clock choir, which was to have been held on Thursday has been deferred until Saturday owing to the desire of the excursionists to stay at home and greet Company M a send off. The excursion will be held on Saturday morning leaving Rhinebeck on the steamer Albany at 7 o'clock.

A Belated Courtesy.

Directors of the Y. M. C. A. on Tuesday extended the privileges of the swimming tank to the members of Company M and to say that the offer was accepted is putting it mildly, the men going to the tank by details of a score or more. Today the tank offered a diversion for numbers.

OUR BOYS OF COMPANY M.

Hark! I hear the bugle sounding, High upon the morning air Calling brave men to the colors For their country's good and dare, Loud and clear and sweet it rings, Sounding long, trumpet blare, As they answer to the roll call, Each one proudly saying, "Here!"

Now our gallant boys go marching, Marching bravely to the war, And in front they lead the march, Home again when it is over.

Oh before them goes their captain, Brave and loyal, kind and true, Proudly leads the brave men, Stars and stripes, red, white and blue, Raise the standard high, still higher, Let it never fly in doubt, Always bravely stand, till there, While in God we put our trust.

And the eyes left home to ponder In the wars of war and men, Will pray God to safely bring them Home again, our company M.

Tridium at St. Peter's.

In preparation for the Feast of the Sacred Heart a tridium, that is, a three days' spiritual retreat, will take place at St. Peter's Church. Services will begin this evening at 7:45 and will close on Friday evening. The exercises will consist of Sacred Heart devotion, sermon, benediction, confessions and communion. Confessions will be held this evening and on a narrow afternoon and evening. One of the fathers from Leominster will assist in the confessional, and will preach throughout the exercises.

That is the business of all to wear the yoke of your own wrongdoing—Eliot.

S. Cohen's Sons.

MAJOR CHANDLER IS NOT A GENERAL

As Clearly Stated in The Freeman on Tuesday He Has Not Been Promoted in Rank Nor Has His Pay Been Increased.

There is an easy lesson in military matters that it is earnestly hoped will be read and mastered by those ignorant persons heretofore unable to understand that the fact of having been assigned to staff duty has not made Major Chandler a general or anything else than a major in the Tenth Infantry. Although The Freeman plainly stated the facts on Tuesday evening and referred to the "B. S. L." has insisted the major is a general and receiving a salary of anywhere from $600 a month up to $600 a week, according to the utility of the imagination of the particular B. S. L. who tells the story. Perhaps these definitions, given in the International Dictionary, will clear up the matter:

"An adjutant is a staff officer, who assists the commander of a squadron, battalion, regiment, or battalion in the details of field or garrison duty; any staff officer in a smaller or larger body of troops, with similar functions."

"Adjutant-General—The principal staff officer of an army, corps, division, or brigade, as of State Militia, through whom the commanding general receives communications and issues military orders. In the United States army the officer senior in rank of those in the Adjutant-General's department has the title of Adjutant-General, the other officers have the title of Adjutant-General (without the definite article). His insignia is a shield of gold or silver. In the British army he is general officer of high rank assisting, and directly responsible to, the commander in chief."

Major Chandler of the Tenth Infantry has been assigned to duty on the staff of General Lester, commanding the brigade of which the Tenth Regiment is a part. He has not been promoted—merely assigned to duty at brigade headquarters, and being assigned to act as brigade adjutant. This is a mark of confidence and an honor, but his military rank is still that of major and his pay that of a major, which is $3,000 a year. This has created no vacancy in the Tenth Regiment to be filled by promotion. A captain may be assigned as acting major, and the officers of his company moved up one step as "acting," as the entire matter is one of temporary assignment.

SECRET OF A MOTHER BIRD.

How Does the Chimney Swift Get Her Brood Up the Flue?

In the autumn chimney swift nests often make the chimney smoke, and they had to be fished out or knocked down by lowering a pine branch on a rope from the roof.

Once upon a time, of course, these swallows built in hollow trees. But a pair of them, flying over a mountain in 1621, spied something which looked like a new kind of tree, and the breed was on its way to a new procedure.

Possibly the fact that chimneys are safer from squirrels, coons, owls and other possible enemies was a factor in determining the change. Then, too, it is undoubtedly easier to find chimneys today than hollow trees. I well remember, as a boy, hearing a noise in one of our chimneys and pulling out the stovepipe hole cap in my chamber. There, directly opposite the opening, perched on a protruding brick, a swift was building a nest of sticks.

I watched the whole process, fascinated by the sticky mud which the bird secreted in her salivary glands to fasten the sticks together, and after the mother was sitting gradually got her so tame—or, rather, sufficiently subdued her wildness—that she would remain occasionally on the nest when the cap was removed. My great desire was to see how she got the young birds up the chimney after they were large enough to leave the nest but, alas, that feat was accomplished one day when I wasn't looking! I felt certain then that she must have carried them up in her bill, though I was laughed at for my belief.

Has any one observed a chimney swift getting her young up the flue? Curiously enough, I myself have never had another chance to watch—Walter Prichard Eaton in Harper's Magazine.

HOME IN ITS TRUE SENSE.

Each Must Help to Make It, but One Alone Can Mar It.

To say of the home which marriage ought to create that it is "a man's kingdom, a child's paradise and a woman's world" is to blur its meaning. The home is no one's kingdom, no one's paradise, no one's world. The only kingdom it resembles is the kingdom of heaven, because it is within you. Home is dependent for its reality and its reality is as deep as anything we know—upon a condition of spirit.

This indeed is embodied or at least shadowed forth in this or that physical symbol the sheltering roof, the fire place, the common table—but it is dependent on no one of these.

For Omar the symbol was the loaf, the jug and the bowl, for Deirdre and Niall it was the tent "as tidy as a beehive or a fowler's nest," or the open sky "above the shape and power."

Home is no love and companionship and mutual dependence, the spirit of common service and of common loyalty. It may be achieved by a husband and wife or by a family or by two friends or even by a single person who has the home feeling toward the world.

To say that it is the woman's hardest task to make the home is to miss its most exalted meaning. No one of the group can make the home, though any one can mar it. It must be made by all for it is of all—Atlantic Monthly.

Philander Perkins of the Notch

How a Confirmed Bachelor Became a Benedict

By CHARLES S. PEARSE

Harkin's general store was the town club, and around the round table which stood in a square sand box the members gathered summer and winter. There were regular and transient members in this club, some arriving soon after the shutters were taken down and who hurried back from their dinners. Occasional visitors were rather lightly regarded and their opinions, expressed in an unguarded moment, usually disputed. Well-wanted chairs and benches surrounded the stove, and from a cozy window arm chair, sacred to him of Philander Perkins, the rest of the furniture was by common consent the roost of the regulars.

One morning an unobtrusive person stopped his "eight" at the store to get a road map, and in order to get some information that the map did not seem to cover he pushed himself into the circle about the stove, interrupting a line of observations by Philander on crops.

Following a lead to matters of traveling abroad, he was soon holding it over his audience that he had been all over Europe, had visited the pyramids and Persia, Manila and Madagascar, Australia and the Argentine. He had crossed the Andes and the isthmus and had a speaking acquaintance with the equator. During this gratuitous travelogue many a side glance was directed by the senators to note the effect on Philander Perkins, who after awhile paused in stalling his pipe stem with a stalk of timothy and, looking severely over his spectacles at the intruder, inquired, "Have you ever been to Great Notch?"

"Great Notch?" asked the traveler. "Great Notch? Where is that?" "Haven't seen Great Notch? Well, well, mister, you've got a great deal to see yet!" And the traveler departed in high dudgeon, slamming the door after him.

Above the village and perhaps half a mile therefrom stood the castle of Philander Perkins in a gap in the hills called Great Notch. Famous in the country roundabout are the views from that much favored region. To the south, the line of the Orange mountain, dotted with the villas of the commanders, and as the eye sweeps east there is seen the outline of Staten Island, somewhat obscured by the vapors from sundry oil refineries, whence come that precious fluid which makes the motor horn own brother to the crack of doom.

Here at the Notch dwelt Philander Perkins in a three roomed bungalow built by himself. Some ten acres of land, including a pasture and a wood lot, a kitchen garden and a corn patch, a cow stable and a producing henhouse, rounded out the domestic. Some estates are grander, some are larger, but none offer finer surroundings.

"ANY HELP THAT I CAN GIVE WILL BE RENDERED MOST GLADLY."

Contentment, peace on its ridge-poles, pure from the cat, wags from Towser's tail and sings from the ket-tle.

Philander had never married, and when talked about it by those who dared he was moved to make some pithy remarks about being compelled to wear one's coat and shoes. He was, to tell the truth, a confirmed bachelor. The calendar instead of by the floor clock, and spending real money for feathered headgear, and so forth. He sat in a room when some senator intimated that he had heard it said that though a man might live to a ripe age in single harness, he was bound to get down to some thing, and therefore it was best to start young and get tired, for the longer postponed the greater the ordeal would be complicated. To all this he would say "I once married his cow, made his own butter, cooked a special hen he was hungry and performed the inside and outside chores with zestness and dispatch."

"Providence never intended me to trot double. No calico in mine. If I am late," he said in croak, "I don't have to select the most plausible of several excuses to hand out for home consumption."

"Oh, Philander, you are well armed except in one spot. Your piping is complete—almost, you are invulnerable—ready!"

Late one afternoon Israel Harkin, a prosaic forum and asked if his body was going up street pretty soon. Philander said he was willing to go on the errand, as he was leaving for home in a few minutes. "I want to get you to take this dandelion up to Hiram," said Israel.

"How is Hiram anyway?" asked some one. "Sick abed with inflammatory rheumatism," Israel told them. "Even since his wife died ten years ago he hasn't had any one to look after him properly. He hasn't had his ritual regular and hasn't had any of the comforts of home. He ought to have a housekeeper. Hiram is pretty near, you know, and is as contrary as a red heifer. I've had a trained nurse to come down from town to take care of him. Hiram is well fixed. He can afford it. The pay is twenty-five a week."

"Well, then, Philander," he must be pretty good. One of those young things in a striped dress and a cap as big as a trade dollar?"

"No, siree! Her name is Mrs. Samuel P. Simpson, and she's got more sense than I ever seen before inside of a calico dress. Hiram, he's got his master at last!"

"Hiram? Master him?" And Philander snorted broadly. "Let's have the dandelion, Israel."

Answering Philander's resounding blows of the knocker on Hiram Harkin's front door, a comely person promptly appeared in a spotless blue and white uniform and an ample snowy cap, fairly radiating protection and comforting assurance. It seemed to Philander as though she might be capable of making those little motherly clocks peculiar to brooding hens.

"My name is Philander Perkins. I've brought some dandelion for Hiram from his brother at the store," and Philander bowed awkwardly and knew it.

"Come right in, Mr. Perkins, and take a seat in the parlor while I get the dandelion for Mr. Harkin. He will be glad to see you. I won't be more than five minutes."

"I don't know as I have time," faltered Philander, who had all the time there was. However, she had already shut the door and all but pushed him into the best room. He quickly noticed that a revolution had taken place in that temple and was soon cheerfully blind to Hiram's room, a chair was placed for him and the door closed. The sufferer was trussed up in bed like a large fowl prepared for the oven.

"Philander, I am glad you have come. I need the support of a friend. I feel like a cornstuck in a gale of wind. I cannot realize that I am in my own house or that I'm myself at all."

"The first thing she did when she got here was to fire all the medicine in the house out of the back window, and then she led me as aforesaid. After that she got four women and a boy and cleaned house in three hours. I overheard from Stebbins' boy they got a wheelbarrow load of dirt out. The furniture is all reset. I don't seem to have anything to say in my own house—me that was born here. Philander, I don't think I can stand it. What would you do about it?"

"Do about it? Do about it? You old salt, bachelor, you've needed fashioning for the last ten years! Just do what you are told. You don't know when you are well off. Just relax on your old rusty hinges and surrender to—superior power."

"Huh! You wouldn't, Philander?" "Well," said that person dryly, "I don't have to. I'll be around tomorrow to see that you are obeying orders."

Philander was conscious of a sense of satisfaction in being on the side of the ruling spirit in the house and showed as much when he was taking his leave.

"Good day, ma'am," he offered blandly. "You will find your patient a little contrary but your coming is the best thing that could happen to him. He wants training more than any man I know, and if this spell does not kill him he will come out of it a new critter. I'll drop in once in awhile. Any help that I can give will be rendered most gladly," finished Philander gallantly.

Mrs. Simpson smiled graciously and thanked Philander in a nice superior sort of way, as befitting the general manager of the situation, and that pleased him, for wasn't he a superior person himself?

"Philander," lamented Hiram Harkin the next day "she's had all the windows open. She sent down to the carpenter shop and got Abner up here. They pretty near tore the side of the house out getting some of the windows open. They hadn't been raised since the house was built! Neither my mother nor Mrs. Harkin would have them open on account of flies or dirt or the cold. Mrs. Simpson says it isn't safe to live in a house with the lid down. Now, what do you think about all these notions?"

"Hiram, she will make a man of you yet. You have lived in this old cocoon all your life as a afraid of a mouthful of fresh air as a tramp is of a shower bath."

"By the way, Hiram," inquired Philander pointedly "how about Samuel P.?"

"Samuel P. P. Samuel P. who?" "Samuel P. Simpson, Hiram, her husband. Can't he support her?"

"Why, Philander, she's a fiddler." "Oh!" said Philander Perkins.

Late in the fall of that year Philander asked if any one in the senate had a goose head that would apply to the state of Ohio.

"I must go out there to look after some land that I took in trade some years ago, and I will sell it by the callon or I will take it and so per foot board measure for the standing timber if there is any."

As nobody had the desired article, Philander took a chance and left for the west the following day, escorted to the train by the entire deliberative body from Harkin's store. In ten days he was back again in pretty bad shape with rheumatism.

"Well, I got what I was looking for. I sold the property, and I got soaking, soaping well. Harkin, if you have the address of Mrs. Samuel P. Simpson I wish you would wire her to take passage for Great Notch at the earliest possible moment. I'm in for a seige something like what Hiram had, and I'm going to take the same medicine." Philander was driven home by one of the senators, who also volunteered to attend to him and the chores until expert relief arrived.

"MARRY YOU? NOT IN A THOUSAND YEARS! RESIDES, I'M GOING TO ASK HER MYSELF!"

As welcome as sunshine after rain, Miranda Simpson turned up the next morning bright and early.

A wave of pure joy such as Philander had never known broke over him at sight of this angel of mercy and washed him up to high water mark. "Mrs. Simpson, you are a raft to a shipwrecked sailor. You are a bucket of water to a dry camel. I resign. I surrender. Feed me liniment or rub it in. You may turn this mansion inside out and shake it, only bring me around like you did Hiram Harkin."

Mrs. Simpson took the nearest rocker. "Mr. Perkins," she said, "surrender is a very good medicine, and now to get you comfortable. After that we will try to get things shipshape. Never mind, I'll find everything, never fear."

In a few days Philander was taking refreshing naps and absorbing all the nonishment that was considered good for him.

One evening Hiram Harkin dropped in. Philander noticed that he had a new suit of clothes and that his hair and beard had recently been trimmed.

"Philander, I understand that you are coming around all right. Couldn't be otherwise with the kind of cure you're getting."

Hiram would not sit down, but kept stirring around as though he had something on his mind. Finally he blurted out, "Mrs. Simpson, I think I'll sit by the fire in the front room till you are through fussing with Philander," and went out.

"Did you want to see me about anything, Mr. Harkin?" asked Mrs. Simpson a few minutes later, looking into the front room.

"Yes, ma'am," said Harkin eagerly, getting up from his chair and shutting Philander in.

"By the ten plagues of Egypt, that old rascal has sprung himself up to come here to my house and court my nurse under my very nose!"

Just then a boy's voice was heard in the back entry asking if he could get a quart of milk, and Mrs. Simpson had just forth to get it.

Philander Perkins dashed into the front room.

Bells in Ireland.
A peculiar interest attaches to the bells which tourists and collectors find in Ireland. It is said that it was St. Patrick who taught the monks and craftsmen how to make bells after he had gone to the Emerald Isle in 430. Many of the early bells remain and are examples of exquisite decoration. A copy of the bell cover of St. Patrick is now in the South Kensington Museum and is a perfect example of Celtic art, while the silver bell of St. Mora, in the Wallace collection, is hardly less interesting. It is of a unique style, with its filigreed ornaments plaited and twisted and interlaced.—Exchange.

Port Ewen, June 28.—The W. C. T. U. social that was to have been held Friday, June 30, has been postponed until a later date.

Henry Stryker of Kingston called on friends here Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Lapine of Green street have the sympathy of this entire village during the sickness and death of their lovely daughter, Mary, who died Monday night after a short illness. Miss Lapine was a young lady beloved by all who knew her. She possessed rare qualities found in the young people of today. She was very active in church and social work, always responding gladly to requests made to her to assist in entertainments and social gatherings. She will be greatly missed in our village as she was one lovely girl. Besides her parents she leaves five sisters and one brother. Her funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Methodist Church, of which she was a devout member. Interment in Port Ewen cemetery.

Esopus Council, No. 42, Sons and Daughters of Liberty, will meet in Hutton's Hall this evening at 8 o'clock.

Henry Deane of Kingston called on friends here Tuesday.

The following is the program for the entertainment to be held in the Sunday school room of the Reformed Church Friday evening, June 30, called the June Frolic: Recitation—Jacquelyn Monroe. MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke).

New York, June 28.—"A player on a tail-end team ought to hit from 10 to 30 points higher than he would if he were on a pennant battling crew," ventured a fan the other day.

"Howzat?"

"Well, pitchers rarely work their heads off against cellar champs. Class tells in baseball. Usually before the fifth or sixth inning comes along, the good team is so far ahead that the game is practically sewed up. Therefore, the pitcher on the top-heavy team saves his arm. He doesn't pitch his mightiest. He jobs them over, and of course, the batsmen get more hits, thus fattening their averages.

"Now take the case of the Giants and Larry Doyle last season," continued the fan. "In 1915 the Giants blew themselves to be first champion batsmen they have had for many years. Also, the Giants finished in the cellar. After August 15th they never had a chance to win the bunting.

"And so, from that time on, the opposing pitchers didn't work so awfully hard against the Giants—and Larry Doyle's average grew so large that at the end of the year he led the pack.

Lajoie And Others.

"Napoleon Lajoie never played on a championship team. Yet his batting average, year after year, was wonderful. His grand hitting mark ranks among the highest ever turned in. Only twice during his long career had Lajoie been on a club that actually was in the fight for an extended period. Opposing clubs rarely found it hard to beat Lajoie's team and so the rival pitchers frequently took it easy when hearing to Napoleon.

"Ty Cobb did his most tremendous hitting during the years when the Tigers were not actually in the fight for the bunting. During other years, when the British crowd kept in the fight all through the season, Ty faced pitchers who were pitching to the full limit of their arms and brains, in an effort to halt the Tigers.

"Joe Jackson averaged somewhere around .270 while he was with the Cleveland Club. He was shipped to the White Sox, a team that was in the pennant hunt for a while in 1915 and Joe turned in an average of .308 last year.

"Practically every batsman in the game hits far better during the last month of the season than he does during the first four weeks. But that is easily explainable. During the opening month of the campaign most of the pitchers are on edge. They twirl their darndest. And only the star fingers work during that period.

Aren't 'Autumn Blossoms'?

"But toward the far end of the season managers of clubs that are out of the race, begin experimenting for the next season. They work their young players, even from the bushes. Veteran batters find it easy to connect with their twisters and slants, and, as a result, the averages fatten.

"You've often noticed, too, that some of the minor league batting stars, getting a major try-out in the fall show up well with the bluegum. It seems then that the majority will land. But in the springtime they cannot do any consistent hitting. Here's the answer:

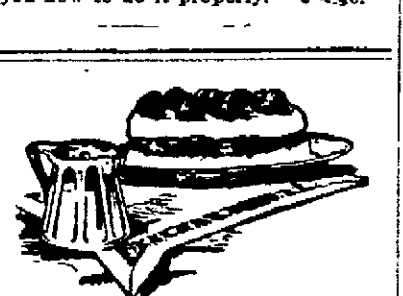

"The minor league batters, getting a fall trial in the majors, rarely face major league pitching. They go up against the minor league hurlers, who are getting their trial. The 'bush' hitters, therefore, face the same calibre and of course, find no trouble maintaining their minor league averages."

The will was executed March 1, 1916, and witnessed by John B. Ball and Irving Mackey, Jr., both of Marlborough, and disposes of an estate consisting of real property valued at $4,000 and personal property amounting to $3,500. Nettie Jordy of Nyack, the executrix, was represented by John B. Ball.

NEWBURGH DUMPS ITS CITY MANAGER

Councilmen Ignore Court Order and Discharge C. Fred Alber and Name Dr. Henry Wilson in His Stead.

With less than six months under Plan C, the Newburgh city council on Monday dismissed City Manager Fred C. Alber and appointed Dr. Henry Wilson in his place. The councilmen ignored a temporary injunction obtained by W. H. Whitehill restraining them from any action on the dismissal. The order is returnable in supreme court at Poughkeepsie on July 8 and in the meantime the councilmen are said to be in contempt of court.

The taxpayers' proceeding asserted that the dismissal of a man experienced in city affairs was planned for the purpose of appointing a man not qualified for the position and that the city will be the loser thereby. Dr. Wilson in a statement to the press asks a fair field and no heckling. He declares that he will work no miracles but will work to making Plan C a success.

Miss Bessie Hicks and niece, Florence Sheely, of Marlborough were guests at the home of Miss Hicks' brother, Clifford, over Sunday.

Chester Merritt, who has been spending several months at the home of his sister, Mrs. David Blodgett, on Front street, has accepted a position in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Cavanah and little grandson, who have been spending some time with Mrs. Cavanah's daughter, Mrs. Willard Blodgett, have returned to their home in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Amy Hamilton and daughter, Ruth, are visiting relatives in Blauvelt, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Clark of New York have rented furnished rooms of Miss Elizabeth Clair on Front street for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Cockfair attended the funeral of their aunt, Mrs. Susan Woolsey, at Milton on Friday.

Mrs. Clifford Hicks and daughters, Dorothy and Marian visited Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hicks at Kingston on Friday.

On Wednesday, June 21, Miss Margaret M. Harrigan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Harrigan of 926 Traphagen street, North Bergen, was united in marriage to John McNelis, Jr., of Connolly at St. Michael's Monastery Church, West and Stephens streets, West Hoboken. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Thomas C. P., at a nuptial mass. The bride was attired in a gown of crepe de chine and clasped at her throat was a handsome diamond brooch, a gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of roses and sweet peas. The bride was attended by Miss Margaret McNelis, a sister of the groom, and George Harrigan, a brother of the bride, acted as best man. The ushers were Joseph Witzler, William Leiser, Herman Schneppe and George Marugg. The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a platinum lavalier. The ushers each received stick pins set with pearls. Immediately following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride. The house was tastefully decorated with palms and smilax. The couple received many handsome and useful presents, including a valuable silver set from the employees of the Independent Lamp and Wire Company, Weehawken, where the bride was employed as a bookkeeper for a number of years. Mr. and Mrs. McNelis came to Connolly in the evening where a reception was held at the groom's home. The younger folks gave them a skimming during the evening. School closed on Friday and after a short entertainment by the children ice cream and cake were served by the teachers C. E. Longyear and Miss Roosa, and as Mr. Longyear is not going to return in the fall the scholars presented him with a silk umbrella.

ONLY 3 FAIL IN CLASS OF 64

Kingston's Busy Street Liar was active again on Tuesday and circulated the report that only sixty per cent of the senior class of the high school would be graduated on Friday night, only that percentage having passed the requisite examinations. As a matter of fact, all except three members of the senior class which comprises sixty-four members, will be graduated. The three who failed had depended on passing examinations in a number of subjects, but were unsuccessful in their efforts.

The percentage of the seniors who will be graduated therefore is 95.3 per cent, which is a high percentage, failure of ten per cent is not uncommon in high school classes, so that Kingston's percentage is something of which to be proud.

Big Jeff Tesreau won't be traded to St. Louis for "Slim" Sallee. McGraw called off the deal after the way the "Ozark Bear" twirled against the Dodgers.

"Home Run" Baker has got the habit again. For the third successive day he lined out a circuit smash. Connie Mack sent a Johnson to the firing line. He wasn't a good understudy for the great Walter.

Joe Jackson's bat set the Indians back another game.

The Braves are on the warpath. The Phillies were scalped again and now hold second place by a slender thread.

The Red Sox seem to be hitting their stride. The world champions are now only a game and a half from the top.

The Tigers are still in the hunt, while the Nationals are skidding fast.

The eastern teams are having the battle all to themselves in the national.

WERE DAVID DEE'S CHICKENS DYED?

Remarkable Change in Color of Two White Imported Chickens, Who Overnight Became Green and Red Respectively—Railroad Avenue Fuzzled.

Despite the serious Mexican crisis facing the country Railroad Avenue had another problem on its hands, and as yet it has proved an unsolved mystery. But to get down to the facts in the case David Dee, a general employe at the White Tie Lunch on that avenue. He is the owner of two imported chickens which he had placed for safe keeping in a box back of the lunch room. The other night he fed them as usual and noticed no change in their beautiful white plumage, but next morning when he went to feed his pets he was thunderstruck to find that from a pure snowlike white they had changed to a brilliant green and red color respectively.

Now the grave question before the soap box solvers of the nation's problems is whether it was the feed that David fed his pets that caused one to change to a green color and the other to a red, or whether some noxious fumes had opened the box, and abstracted the two chickens and liberally applied red and green paint to the plumage and then restored the fowls back to their abiding place.

It is said that Mr. Dee is positive that it was not the feed he fed the chicks that caused the change in color, but the transformation is due to old fashioned house paint.

While Mr. Dee leans to that opinion others who have seen the fowls incline to the theory that it was the feed.

When the fowls begin to moult the puzzle will probably be solved, until then any one may offer whatever solution that occurs.
